SAVANNAH PASTOR DEFEATS DR. MELL FOR PRESIDENCY

Question of Eligibility Is Raised When Dr. John Mell Is Proposed for Re-election.

2 OTHER OFFICERS BOTH RE-ELECTED

Baptists of Georgia Open 108th Annual Session Tuesday Afternoon in Gainesville Church.

GAINESVILLE, Ga., Nov. 19.—Dr. John E. White pastor of the First Baptist church of Savannah, today was elected president of the Georgia Baptist Convention, succeeding Dr. John D. Mell, of Athens, who held the post for 17 years.

Dr. White was nominated by Dr. W. A. Taliaferro, pastor of the Bull Street Baptist church of Savannah, who told the convention Dr. Mell was ineligible to continue in the presidency because of his connection as field representative for certain denominational institutions.

It marked the first time in several years that there had been any opposition to the re-election of Dr. Mell.

D. D. Ragdale, of Macon, was re-elected secretary of the convention and E. J. Forrester, of Sparta, was re-elected treasurer. Both were returned to their posts by acclamation. Mr. Ragdale has served the convention as secretary since 1886.

H. D. Warnock, of Forsyth, was appointed assistant secretary of the convention by Mr. Ragdale.

Dr. White's election followed a discussion on the floor of the convention as to Dr. Mell's eligibility.

Rev. L. A. Henderson, of Columbus, Ga., said it was "exceedingly unfortunate that the matter of disqualification has been mentioned if it is not true." He asked the opinion of the chair if Dr. Mell was qualified to serve as president and Dr. J. C. Wilkinson, of Athens, presiding, ruled that Dr. Mell was qualified.

During the discussion, Dr. William Russell Owen, of Columbus, gave notice that he would seek an amendment to the constitution next year to limit the tenure of the office of the convention president to two years.

The convention opened at the First Baptist church this afternoon of the 108th annual session.

Two meetings were held preliminary to the opening of the convention. The executive committee met at a luncheon party (finishing touches on its report to the convention, and the committee on The Christian Index, state Baptist publication, made its report.

Supplementing the facilities of hotels, accommodations were arranged for six hundred persons in private homes as clerical and lay delegates arrived.

Preceding the start of the sessions in the First Baptist church, which his pastor, Dr. Roland O. Leavell, would hold 1,200, the registration of delegates occupied the churchmen.

No Reflection on Mell.
In nominating Dr. White, Dr. Taliaferro said he wished to make it clear that he meant no reflection on the fine character of the man of God now holding that office.

He said that "there simply has been a question in the minds of some as to the constitutionality of the incumbent serving as president of the convention, and acting also in the field for certain denominational institutions."

Dr. White said he "neither coveted the honor nor desired the burden of the presidency. In all my life I have been in the ranks, except once, and I am happy to serve in the ranks. I ask the privilege of withdrawing my name from further discussion."

Rev. W. P. Binn, of LaGrange, said he thought it "a serious situation when the question of propriety of the nomination of any man before the convention should be raised" and urged that the convention decline to elect Dr. White as president.

The convention approved Rev. Mr. Binn's suggestion and the four vice presidents were elected.

Those nominated for vice presidents were Dr. Roland O. Leavell, pastor of the First Baptist church of Gainesville; Rev. J. Herman Gresham, pastor of the Smyrna Baptist church; Rev. F. E. Smith, of the First church, of Augusta; Dr. W. H. Faust, pastor of the First Baptist church of Savannah.

SOUTHERNER MAY GET GOOD'S POST

Discussions of Probable Successor to War Secretary Center Around Leading Southern Men.

BY GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 19.—While President Hoover is giving no thought at the moment to the task of naming a successor to Secretary of War James W. Good, who died at Walter Reed hospital here last night after an operation for appendicitis, speculation in political circles of the national capital is already revolving around the prospects of the post, one of the most important in the cabinet, going to a southern man.

Not until the first of next week, after the late war department head is laid to his final resting place at his old home in Cedar Rapids, Iowa, will the president be expected to turn his attention to the vacancy, the first to occur in the Hoover cabinet.

Of deference to an intimate friend and political associate, Mr. Hoover will necessarily wait until after the burial is held Friday.

Interest in the war department portfolio, however, is none the less acute, and has been emphasized by a list of a half dozen names thrust forward in the speculation during the day.

Coffin Considered.
Among those mentioned from the southern tier of states, which Mr. Hoover failed to recognize in forming his cabinet, the name of Adolphus S. C. Coffin, of Sapelo Island, Georgia, heads the list. Conversations are known to have taken place at the White House in his behalf several months ago. It would not come as the unexpected in Washington official circles to see Mr. Coffin tender the post. He and Mr. Hoover have been on intimate terms for years and even have a remote family relation.

At least three other southerners have been mentioned along with Mr. Coffin. These include Claudis S. Huston, of Tennessee, presidential chairman of the republican national committee; Acting Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley, of Oklahoma; and Stuart W. Cramer, of North Carolina.

In view of Chairman Huston's position, however, doubt is expressed in some quarters that he will be seriously considered, although it would not be unprecedented for him to serve in the dual role. At the beginning of the Harding administration Will H. Hays continued his office of chairman of the national committee after receiving the appointment of postmaster-general.

Acting Secretary Hurley's name has been advanced for the post because of his familiarity with war department affairs. It is urged in his behalf also that his appointment to the permanent post would not only fill the much criticized southern gap, but would meet the demands of service men that one of their number should have a place in the cabinet.

Mentioned Before.
As for Mr. Cramer, his appointment was prominently urged in the beginning as secretary of commerce. It is in the regular order of things, therefore, that he should again be injected into the cabinet discussion.

In the event the president should decide to wait until some future time to correct the southern omission the spotlight would be focused more directly on such names as William J. Donovan, of New York, former assistant attorney-general and one of the chief Hoover lieutenants during the pre-convention campaign; Representative

RAIL EXECUTIVES, RESERVE COUNCIL TO AID BUSINESS

Business Leaders Confer With President at White House on Prosperity of Nation.

BY JAMES L. WEST.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—President Hoover's business progress conferences got under way today in an atmosphere of optimism which is expected to go a long way toward removing such apprehension and hesitancy in the industrial and commercial fields as usually are manifested after a collapse of prices in the stock market.

Railway executives who gathered at the White House in the forenoon gave assurances of co-operation in the maintenance of employment by proceeding with full programs of construction and betterments while members of the advisory council of the federal reserve board reported in the afternoon that business and banking in each of the twelve districts over the country were in sound condition.

So encouraging is the outlook for the present year that perhaps a 12 per cent increase in the amount of federal reserve funds is being considered. This was interpreted to mean that the council might recommend to the federal reserve bank a lowering of the discount rate from the present 4 per cent to perhaps 3 1/2 per cent now obtaining in the New York federal reserve district.

Stimulate Business.
This of itself would stimulate business in the judgment of federal officials and would materially assist in the carrying forward of the program of construction and betterments, which during the next six months will exceed those of the corresponding period of last year, the railway chiefs said they would canvass the situation as to further possibilities of expansion.

The result of the conference of the railway presidents with Mr. Hoover, Secretaries Mellon and Lamont, Chairman Lewis, of the interstate commerce commission, and Julius Barnes, chairman of the board, and William Butterworth, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, was that the railroad industry was in a position to undertake a program of construction and betterments, which during the next six months will exceed those of the corresponding period of last year, the railway chiefs said they would canvass the situation as to further possibilities of expansion.

Seven of Jury Selected, Strange Story Of Rothstein Death To Begin Thursday

Three of those who are expected to take prominent parts in the trial of George McManus, charged with the murder of Arnold Rothstein, arch gambler and racketeer of Broadway, now under way at New York, are pictured above. On the left is Inez Norton, actress, to whom Rothstein willed his money and who was playing on the stage in England at the time he was killed in a hotel a year ago. Right is Bridget Barry, chambermaid in the Park Central hotel, where the gambler was killed. Center is Joe Benjamin, Pacific coast prizefighter, who is held by the state as a "surprise" witness. He is known to have had a room on the same floor on which Rothstein is alleged to have been slain.

ATLANTA INVITED TO HOOVER PARLEY

T. T. Flagler Summoned to Washington for Conference With President Friday.

BY MORRIS DE HAVEN TRACY.

UNITED NEWS Staff Correspondent.
NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—(United News)—Seven jurors, well-known, prosperous citizens, were in the jury box tonight when the second day of the trial of big, rollicking George McManus for the alleged murder of Arnold Rothstein, gambler, racketeer, was under way.

Every indication was that by tomorrow night the jury would be completed and that the unfolding of the strange story of Rothstein's last hours could begin by Thursday.

Every juror who has been passed has gone under the sharp scrutiny of McManus himself—a gambler by profession, with the ability to read faces which is necessary in such a calling. After James D. C. Murray, his attorney, had finished asking a salesman whether he thought gamblers were depraved people and whether he himself now and then put down just a little bet on a pony, Murray invariably resumed his seat beside McManus and, with heads close together, they talked the man over in whispers. Murray passed none of them unless McManus liked them.

The seven men passed for jury duty are: Herman T. Sherman, sales manager; Eugene A. Riker, salesman; William Belknap, insurance broker; Joseph S. Sornbor, real estate broker; Joseph A. Callahan, contractor; George W. Oliver, certified public accountant; William Stephenson, telephone supervisor.

The talesmen all came from the wealthier section of the city. They gave addresses on Riverside drive, Park avenue, Morningside Heights, and such exclusive neighborhoods. They were typical of the more prosperous New Yorkers who can afford to pay $500 or more a month for a four-room or larger apartment. They wore carnations and gardenias in their buttonholes; their clothes were carefully pressed and chosen; some had chauffeurs waiting outside.

It is part of the Rothstein legend that he was the connecting link between the underworld and the upper world of New York and it is legend need substantiation it received it today. The answers of these brokers, bankers, real estate dealers, men who gave exclusive apartments and even fancy clubs as their home addresses, to questions asked them shed a definite light upon the relation between Hell's Kitchen and Park Avenue.

Fully half of the talesmen examined today had some contact either with Arnold Rothstein, the dead financier of the underworld, or with George McManus, the exceedingly alive gambler and bookmaker accused of killing him.

"And now, tell us," an attorney would ask in hoarse manner, "you were with him on Thursday night, Tuesday night."

SENATE REDUCES COTTON TARIFFS

Night Session Results in Refusal to Accept Proposed Higher Scales; House Rate Passed.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—(United News)—The textile industry suffered a series of reversals in the senate today in its attempt to get increased tariff protection which its representatives claimed was necessary to bring it up to other industries.

It won one major victory, however, in securing increased duties on unbleached cloth.

The textile schedule was completed at the night session, in which one of the few increases was granted. Southern senators were successful in getting a three-cent a pound tariff on cotton rags, which brought the only roll call of the night.

The chief controversy centered about such minor items, while increases proposed for major textile products were voted down without challenge. The finance committee won one of these minor skirmishes, an increase from 55 to 75 per cent on "bit and miss" rags, when Vice President Curtis broke a tie.

Senator Norris, republican, Nebraska, twitted the senate for voting a tariff on rags, declaring that "rags and poverty go together," and that the United States should let foreigners make its rags.

After the textile schedule was completed the senate approved a number of house increases on flax and hemp and their products.

OGILLA DEFENDANT IS ONLY WITNESS IN OWN DEFENSE

Publisher, Witness for State, Says Sligh Admitted Killing in Conversation Before Arrest.

PLOT TO KILL NEGRO IS ALSO RECOUNTED

Former Employee Says Sligh Once Planned to Burn Negro and Collect Insurance.

BY WILBUR BURTON.

Associated Press Staff Writer.
OCILLA, Ga., Nov. 19.—(AP)—Harry K. Sligh, charged with a $90,000 insurance plot murder, tonight trusted his life to an unworn 17-word statement to the Irwin county superior court jury trying him here.

The sole evidence of the defense, the statement said: "Gentlemen of the jury, the testimony of John Dawson is absolutely false and I am not guilty."

Sligh began his statement deliberately, but near the end his voice broke and he left the stand hurriedly.

Sligh is charged with slaying Harry Loving, a 19-year-old youth, and burning his body in his farm home near here in September, 1926, in a plot to collect life insurance of nearly $90,000. Aubrey C. and James Hoover, also of Huntington, and Loving's companions on their hitch hike to Florida, also were indicted in connection with the youth's death.

The trial moved swiftly today, with the state calling witnesses rapidly after the first hour of the session had been devoted to selection of a jury composed of 12 farmers and an automobile salesman.

A surprise witness for the state was Aubrey Carlisle Hoover, who with his brother, James Hoover, was jointly indicted with Sligh.

Hoover told of the hitch-hiking trip with Loving and said the trio had decided to "put up" somewhere in Georgia because it was easier for one than three to "hitch" rides.

On the morning after this decision, he said, he awakened first and went ahead. As he was drinking coffee in a filling station, he said, an automobile passed and "Harry waved from it, saying, 'So long, see you in Florida.'"

"That was the last I saw of my chum," the state rated its case immediately after Hoover left the stand at 4 p. m.

J. F. Paulk, Fitzgerald undertaker, and Dr. G. W. Willis, a local physician, both testified that the torso found in the ruins after the fire, and at first believed to be the body of Sligh, was that of a young white man. Dr. Willis said the condition of the bones showed it was the body of a person not over 25 years of age. The head, arms and legs were missing.

Mr. Paulk, Dr. Willis, Sheriff Tyler and Chief of Police J. H. Whitely all testified a careful search of the ruins failed to reveal any of the

250 Cubans Are Expected To Accompany Havana Teams To City for Games Dec. 4

Good-Will Party Will Be Most Colorful in Atlanta History, Col. Woodward Declares.

One of the most colorful delegations in Atlanta's history will arrive here December 4, for a four-day visit, according to Colonel James C. Woodward, president of the Georgia Military Academy, who returned Monday from Havana, member of a party of five prominent Atlantans who extended an invitation to Cuban dignitaries to visit this city at that time, on a good-will tour.

Colonel Woodward said that many Cuban women expected to join the party, some of them being sponsors for the football and basketball teams from Havana which play the Georgia

Military Academy here during the good-will visit.

The Atlanta party, composed in addition to Colonel Woodward, of Frank Reynolds, B. S. Barker, Adjutant General Homer Parker and Mayor L. N. Ragsdale, arrived in the beautiful Cuban capital on November 14 and were received at the American consulate. The party then made a visit to the offices of five Havana daily newspapers, before calling on President Machado, who formally entertained them for more than an hour.

President Machado expressed to the delegation his deep appreciation of the visit and invitation. The president said that he could not promise definitely to accompany the more than 250 Cubans who are expected to make the trip but would do his utmost to do so. The president told the delegation, said Colonel Woodward, that he would be represented by high army and navy officers and members of his cabinet. General Ruiz, governor general of the province of Havana, and Mayor Gomez, of Havana, son of the distinguished Cuban ex-president, stated that they would visit Atlanta with the good-will party.

An interesting angle to the trip was an over-Sunday automobile trip to the picturesque city of Manzanillo, 70 miles away. As the party drove into the place overlooking the waters of Manzanillo bay, they were recognized by President Machado, who was enjoying a week-end fishing trip, and invited to be his guests at dinner at Hotel Paris.

She was one of the oldest members of the Central Presbyterian church, having brought her letter from the historic Catholic Presbyterian church in Chester county, South Carolina.

Captain and Mrs. Rosborough, both members of prominent South Carolina families, were married in February, 1885. She is survived by a daughter, Miss Caroline Rosborough, and by two brothers, J. N. FATHER ROBS BABY'S BANK IN STOCK DROP

NATIONAL GUARD CAPTAIN ON TRIAL IN FORGERY CASE

MAON, Ga., Nov. 19.—(AP)—Captain H. B. Euse, commander of national guard company at Milledgeville, today heard 14 youths, members or former members of his company, testify in United States district court that government checks bearing their endorsement had been forged.

Attorneys for the company commander, on trial for the forgery, had previously lost a point when Judge Bascom S. Deaver ruled that a shortage in government equipment did not constitute sufficient grounds for defense to a forgery charge.

The court's ruling, made after arguments in Judge Deaver's office, involved the meaning of an "intent to defraud" upon which defense planned to establish its case, it is understood. The defense contention was that checks alleged to have been endorsed by Captain Euse were used to pay for missing government equipment issued the guardsmen, and that no fraud was intended.

Attorney W. A. Boodle proceeded rapidly with his witnesses, each of whom required only a few minutes on the stand. He announced as court was recessed until 9 o'clock Wednesday morning, that a score or more guardsmen remain to be called, and indications were the case would continue several days.

HARRIS WILL SEEK DRY FUND INCREASE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—(AP)—The senate was informed today by Secretary Mellon of a decreased volume of dry law cases under the increased prohibition staff and Senator Harris, democrat, Georgia, was preparing tonight to demand another boost in the funds for prohibition enforcement at the next session of congress.

Coincidentally, the Georgia dry leader suggested that President Hoover's law enforcement commission make a report of its studies early next session, even though it is a preliminary one.

The Mellon report disclosed that although 532 additional prohibition and customs agents had been employed since March 4, under an increased appropriation of more than $2,000,000 made available last session, the volume of enforcement work was somewhat less than the previous year.

The slackening was attributed by James M. Dorn, prohibition administrator, to an improved quality of work due to a policy of concentration on investigations.

"I haven't believed," Harris said, "that the appropriations were sufficient to make a serious effort toward enforcement. I want an increased appropriation and I asked for the facts in order to show that more money could be used."

He added that there was no need for a delay of several years by the president's commission in making a report, suggesting that it need not be a final one.

Harris said that in one prohibition district only $15,000 additional had been allotted but that the amount was not done this year was more than double that of last year.

The Mellon report disclosed that of the total additional fund appropriated $1,331,536 went to the prohibition service, and $707,890 to the customs service.

In the seven months since April 1, 37,190 persons were arrested by federal agents, compared with 43,218 in a similar period in 1924. Arrests by state officers assisted by federal agents totaled 7,509 in year and 7,009 last year, while arrests by state officials on information furnished by federal officers amounted to 882 this year and 1,324 last.

Prosecutions recommended for federal court in the seven months this year totaled 38,995 as compared with 40,296 last.

CHICAGO REALTY DEALER CHARGED WITH SHORTAGE

CHICAGO, Nov. 19.—(AP)—William Hardt, real estate dealer, was taken from a sick bed last night and removed under police guard to the Bridewell hospital. His arrest followed complaints that his books showed a shortage that might reach $150,000.

P. M. Behrens, left in charge of Hardt's office by Hardt's illness, caused an audit to be made, and said it revealed a shortage. He blamed it on the depression in the real estate market, and expressed the opinion there had been no improper squandering of funds. The books were made to balance, Behrens said, by listing assets for twice their worth.

"If they'd give me a chance," said Hardt at the hospital, "I could pay dollar for dollar."

Florida Span Closed After It Collapses Thrice in Few Months

PENSACOLA, Fla., Nov. 19.—(AP)—Lillian bridge, on the Pensacola-Mobile road, was ordered closed indefinitely today by local authorities who found that nearly 1,000 pillars of the span had been worm eaten and had weakened the structure.

The bridge has collapsed three times in the last few months, the last time on Friday night when it gave way under the weight of a truck. No one was injured.

Traffic being routed over the Nunez bridge, while officials of Baldwin and Escambia counties are attempting to come to terms on plans to build a new bridge to replace the Lillian span.

UNIVERSITY OF CHICAGO INAUGURATES LEADER

Robert Hutchins, 30, Becomes Youngest Major School President.

CHICAGO, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Robert Maynard Hutchins was inducted into the presidency of the University of Chicago today.

At a ceremony dignified by the presence of a galaxy of eminent educators, Dr. Hutchins at the age of 30 became the head of one of America's greatest institutions of learning.

The investiture was proclaimed in the new Gothic chapel of the university by Harold E. Swift, president of the board of trustees.

"We ask from you courage and vision, united with enthusiasm for scholarship," he told the president-elect.

"We ask for zeal in the search for truth and that our standard be held high. We ask for inspiration of our young men and young women. We ask for broad human sympathy, high perspective on the values of human life and helpfulness in the problems of our civilization."

The young son of Yale, second from his alma mater to head the University of Chicago, told of his vision of the destinies of the institution. Around him were gathered 112 presidents of American colleges and universities, some 2,000 distinguished guests in all, representing institutions of learning at home and abroad.

Tall and boyish, but serious of mien, President Hutchins acknowledged the acclamation of his audience. Near Roundout two men overpowered the engine crew, and the train was brought to a stop near a deserted crossroad.

Robbers sprang from along the tracks and forced an entrance to the mail car with tear bombs. All sacks containing valuable mail were tossed into waiting automobiles. Members of the train crew opened fire as the robbers fled, and one of the gang was wounded.

The wounded bandit, Joe Newton, was found the next day at the home of Walter McComb, and confessed. While police were guarding the house, Murray appeared and was arrested.

Robbers, including the plot led to Texas and Oklahoma, and from statements by Newton and Mrs. McComb, the government rounded up the entire gang, including the brothers, Jesse, Willis and Wylie, former cowboys, and the gang leader, Brent Glasscock. Later Fahy was trapped when he attempted to communicate with Murray.

All confessed except Murray, Fahy and McComb. The first two were convicted. McComb was acquitted. Glasscock surrendered $84,000 as his share of the loot. Herbert Holliday, another member of the gang, turned over $100,000, and the Newtons readily surrendered their shares, and were given comparatively short penitentiary sentences.

CARROLL TESTIFIES IN SUGAR PROBE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Investigating a recent disturbance among Cuban sugar producers over possible intervention by the United States in Cuban affairs as the result of charges made against the administration of President Machado, the senate lobby committee was told today by John H. Carroll, Washington attorney, that he had been paid $27,000 to ascertain the facts about the situation in Cuba.

Carroll, who gave his age as "71 year old worn-out man" and said he was "just an old man who has been in the sugar business for many months ago by H. C. Lakin, president of the Cuba Company of New York, but had been prevented by illness from visiting Cuba.

The white-haired witness, who complained frequently of being tired, said he planned to leave for Cuba Sunday and he promised Senator Borah, of Idaho, chairman of the foreign relations committee, to give him a copy of the report he expects to make on the situation in Cuba.

Carroll also said he had been paid $10,000 by Lakin to act as advisor in an effort by the Cuban producers to obtain a lower duty on sugar in the pending tariff bill. He asserted he had not "spoken to a single member of congress about sugar."

At the conclusion of his testimony Carroll was told by Chairman Cawley, of the lobby committee, that it had been a "delight" to have a witness who was so frank. The chairman added that Carroll's testimony had been "quite a contrast" to that by some of the witnesses who have appeared.

Other witnesses today were W. R. Cathcart, chemist of the Corn Products Refining Company, of New York; J. C. Holton, Mississippi commissionaire, and Edwin P. Shattuck, representative of the Domestic Sugar Producers' Association.

Banker Next.

The committee plans tomorrow to question Fred I. Kent, a director of the Bankers' Trust Company of New York, concerning his recent statement that the action of the senate tariff coalition was partially responsible for the stock market disturbance, and Gordon S. Rentschler, of the National City Bank of New York, in regard to the banks sugar holdings in Cuba.

Carroll said he had been employed as counselor of the Cuban embassy in Washington for several years at an annual salary of $4,800 and was a personal friend of President Machado, who, he added, "is one of the finest men I ever knew."

"I am trying and intend to try in every way I can to sustain the Machado government," he asserted, but said later that if charges made against Machado were found to be true he would report to Lakin to that effect.

MAIL BANDIT RETURNS FUNDS, PAPERS CLAIM

Atlanta Penitentiary Inmate Returns $685,000, Chicago Papers Say.

CHICAGO, Nov. 19.—(AP)—The morning papers said today that James Murray, former west side politician now serving a 25-year sentence in Atlanta federal penitentiary, had turned over to the government $685,000 in negotiable bonds, representing his share in the loot of the $2,000,000 Roundout mail robbery of June 12, 1924.

Return of the bonds was in connection with the filing at Washington of an application for commutation of sentence.

With Murray's share returned, the remaining about $4,000 uncovered. That sum is believed to have been taken by William J. Fahy, who was convicted with Murray and who is also serving a 25-year prison sentence. Fahy was regarded as the ace of sleuths in the postal inspection service, was called the master plotter of the robbery, although he took no actual part in it.

United States Attorney George E. O. Johnson said the settlement was made by Murray last spring, the transaction being handled by Washington by Grant Miller, chief postal inspector.

The Roundout robbery occurred at the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul fast mail train No. 57 was pulling out of Chicago with large shipments of money and securities for the northwest. Near Roundout two men overpowered the engine crew, and the train was brought to a stop near a deserted crossroad.

Robbers sprang from along the tracks and forced an entrance to the mail car with tear bombs. All sacks containing valuable mail were tossed into waiting automobiles. Members of the train crew opened fire as the robbers fled, and one of the gang was wounded.

COUPLE FOUND DEAD ON THEIR 54TH ANNIVERSARY

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—(AP)—On the fifty-fourth anniversary of their wedding Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Widdicombe were found dead today, with the gas turned on, in their Brooklyn apartment.

Mrs. Widdicombe, who was 73 years old, was a paralytic. Yesterday a physician told her husband that an arrest had formed on one of her eyes and that she must be taken to a hospital for an operation.

On the chair beside the bed in which their bodies lay was a note in the husband's handwriting. It read: "They tell me that Helen must go away alone. That shall not be. I will go away with her. We cannot be separated after all these happy years."

Widdicombe, for many years chief clerk of the New York Central railroad, was 80 years old.

BRAVERY IN PRISON WINS FULL PARDON FOR YOUNG CONVICT

JACKSON, Miss., Nov. 19.—(AP)—The son of a prominent family in a western state, who was convicted in Mississippi under the alias of A. G. Armond, was granted a pardon today by Governor Bilbo from a 15-year sentence from Warren county on a charge of robbery. Armond was sentenced December, 1923, and won executive clemency for meritorious service in connection with the capture of a negro convict who murdered a penitentiary sergeant after attacking the daughter of the penitentiary employee.

The negro, Charlie Shepard, was burned at the stake for the double crime which occurred last December. Armond was a trusty and in the chain for Shepard was wounded. He was left blind in one eye as a result of the injury.

Armond is a World War veteran having volunteered at the age of 18.

OLD CONVICT FREED WHEN DAUGHTER CONFESSES CRIME

JACKSON, Miss., Nov. 19.—(AP)—T. G. Gunter, serving a five-year sentence in the state penitentiary for a crime his daughter has confessed, today was given a 90-day suspension of sentence in order to publish a petition for a pardon, after which the aged man will be granted a pardon by Governor Bilbo.

Gunter's suspension was granted today by Governor Bilbo and followed closely the confession of his daughter, Mrs. Pearl Drew, that she, and not her father, murdered her husband early this year.

Gunter was convicted largely on the testimony of his daughter and her daughter, both of whom alleged at the time that Gunter had slain Drew.

Early Senate Adjournment Forecast as 'Young Guard' Fails To Effect Agreement

Walsh, Convinced Passage of Tariff Impossible Be-

BY FRANCIS M. STEPHENSON.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—(AP)—
In the face of the determined but leaderless "young guard" republican regulars, the senate was preparing tonight to try again for an adjournment and there seemed to be enough votes in sight to assure the week-recess before the regular meeting in December.

The adjournment resolution very likely will be offered tomorrow, perhaps from the democratic side. The "young guard," which claims the support of President Hoover, is prepared to stand against it but polls today indicated sufficient support to allow the weary, nerve-worn, tariff debaters a week's rest.

Chairman Tamm, of the republican national committee, consulted with some "young guard" members at the capitol today, presumably to encourage their adjournment opposition.

TROTZYK RIDICULES DISARMAMENT PLANS

Says Hoover-MacDonald Idea Merely Rationalization of Preparedness.

BY FREDERICK KUH.
United News Staff Correspondent.
PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 19.—(United News)— Leon Trotsky, one of the guiding ge-nuses of the bolshevik revolution who has spent eight months of an indefinite exile on his island, 15 miles from Constantinople, today ridiculed the Anglo-American naval accord as a "tragic farce."

Recent disarmament developments,
he told the correspondent in an exclusive interview, will prevent an Anglo-American war, which he believes is "not centuries or even decades away."

"Partly between the British and United States fleets means an enormous inequality of navies in favor of the United States," he said. "Only a huge English military and naval superiority before the outbreak of a war would give Britain a chance to counterbalance successfully the technical and economic superiority of the United States."

"A possible agreement for equal navies is not the last word of the United States, whose slogan of freedom of the seas implies a restriction on Britain's use of her naval bases.
It is wrong to assume that Anglo-American antagonism will lead directly to war, but it is making progress toward a revolution by bloodshed."

"I think the Hoover-MacDonald conversations do not involve the limitation of armaments, but merely rationalization of preparedness." Trotsky lives here with his wife, his son, Leon, Jr., and his secretary, a Russian maid-servant. Two Turkish body guards accompany him about the island. The former soviet army commander divides his time between reading, writing a history of the three Russian revolutions, and fishing.
Turkish natives of the island call him the "moonlight shepherd" because he occasionally angles until midnight.

The remark of the chief executive of the American Humane Education Society, presents Governor L. G.
Hardman with a bird house in appreciation of his endorsement of conservation education bill.

A casual remark made by Governor
L. G. Hardman several months ago
reached an unexpected fruition Tuesday when the chief executive was presented a cedar bird house in appreciation of his endorsement of a bill to establishment of a national park
children in the lives, habits and conservation of birds and animals.

The presentation was made by Mrs.
Katherine T. Weatherbee, of College
Park, Georgia representative of the American Humane Education Society
and state chairman of the humane education department of the Georgia
Congress of Parents and Teachers,
who acted on behalf of Dr. B. J. Lam-
mer, of Louisville, Ky., the maker
of the bird house and sent it to Mrs.
Weatherbee.

Accordingly, he made the trin-
cades bird house and sent it to Mrs.
Weatherbee. She incorporated it in her report of the Georgia legislation made
at the convention of the American Humane Association in St. Louis last month.

Dr. Lammer, of Louisville, listed
as the report was made. In Louisville, where he has retired from active practice as a physician, he has devoted his time to humane work. He was so impressed with the importance of the newly made Georgia law to the cause of humane education that he determined to express his appreciation to Governor Hardman.

"Thank you," Governor Hardman
said. "It was given him. It shall hang on the lawn of the executive mansion—and when I go back to Commerce at the end of my administration it will go with me."

Humane Education Society Honors Governor Hardman

Mrs. Katherine Taylor Weatherbee, of the American Humane Education Society, presents Governor L. G. Hardman with a bird house in appreciation of his endorsement of conservation education bill.

A casual remark made by Governor
L. G. Hardman several months ago
reached an unexpected fruition Tuesday when the chief executive was presented a cedar bird house in appreciation of his endorsement of a bill to
establishment of a national park
children in the lives, habits and conservation of birds and animals.

The presentation was made by Mrs.
Katherine T. Weatherbee, of College
Park, Georgia representative of the American Humane Education Society
and state chairman of the humane edu-
Congress of Parents and Teachers,
who acted on behalf of Dr. B. J. Lam-
mer, of Louisville, Ky., the maker
of the bird house and sent it to Mrs.
Weatherbee.

Accordingly, he made the trin-
cades bird house and sent it to Mrs.
Weatherbee. She incorporated it in her
report of the Georgia legislation made
Humane Association in St. Louis last month.

Dr. Lammer, of Louisville, listed
as the report was made. In Louisville, where he has retired from active
practice as a physician, he has devoted his time to humane work. He was so impressed with the importance
of the newly made Georgia law to the cause of humane education that he determined to express his appreciation to Governor Hardman.

"Thank you," Governor Hardman
said. "It was given him. It shall hang on the lawn of the executive mansion—and when I go back
to Commerce at the end of my administration it will go with me."

ROOSEVELT ADVOCATES GOVERNMENT CONTROL

Says Utilities Should Not Be Permitted To Make Huge Profits.

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York, in an article in the December issue of "The Forum," urges government ownership and operation of the St. Lawrence, Muscle Shoals and Boomer Dam water power sites, and a stricter control of the private utility corporations.

"Those who still believe," the article says, "in the basic theory that a public utility is now what it has been always—a servant of the public providing service without discrimination, at a reasonable rate and for a reasonable return on the investment—... are seeking only a return to the ancient principles and protection of the average man and woman."

Governor Roosevelt calls it illogical for holding companies to pyramid their capitalization or form a company capitalized at $1,000,000, with $300-000 worth of stock, to add a theoretical $1,000,000 to its capital value based on the "reproduction" theory, and so to give stockholders the right to demand a return of $1,300,000, which amounts to 34 per cent of their original investment.

The investors of 20 years ago were perfectly justified, he says, in their theory, "that when they put their money into the bonds or stocks of public utility corporations they could not and should not expect to get the same kind of unlimited profits which they might have expected, both legally and ethically, if they had invested in wholly private enterprises which did not have the social characteristics of utilities."

Twitty Outlines His Program WARDEN ALSO PLANS TO CONSERVE HUNSMEN To Conserve Game of State

On the eve of the day when a goodly portion of Georgia's masculine population were to grab guns and assail the embattled covens of holwhites in the first day's shooting "Pete" Twitty, game warden in chief, abandoned
the teachings of his administration.
Turned his back on his feathered friends, and revealed the real objects of his program of conservation.

Tuesday afternoon in his office he hired in his hands two newspaper clippings.
"Two men have been shot in Georgia already this year while hunting.
One of them, Ben Brack, of Midville, is dead. The other, Royd Vick, of Colquitt county, according to this notice, was seriously wounded.
"I do not know anything directly of these two cases—but I do know that out of the thousands of Georgians who will hunt this season there are some who do not know all they should about a gun.
"We have preached enough this year about conservation of the game of the state. There is a greater conservation than that of bird and animal life. That is the conservation of human life.
"A gun is a dangerous thing if it is not rightly handled. Be careful of it when crossing fences and going through brush. When you shoot be sure that a man is not standing in the line of your fire.
"The season opens today on partridge, doves, cat squirrel and turkey.
It is open on duck, plover, snipe, woodcock, marsh hen and deer.
"The birds and animals are the property of the public—there for them to shoot, within reasonable limits.
"Don't let us hear the present sensation with a succession of tragedies."

had stopped beside the highway, about 12 miles north of Waycross, to fix an automobile tire, when he became implicated in a quarrel with Edenfield. After being shot through the stomach, Adams attacked Eden-field with an automobile crank, inflicting serious wounds about the head and back.
Funeral arrangements for the itinerant trader were not announced to-design is very appropriate to combine with early American furniture. It comes in red,

SOVIET FORCES
BOMB CHINESE
EASTERN RAILWAY

HARBIN, Manchuria, Nov. 19.—(AP)— Airplane and artillery bombardment by soviet troops at both ends of the Chinese Eastern railway were reported today and it was believed that the soviet forces were trying to cripple the railway by striking at the road's fuel supply.
Harbin today said that considerable damage had been inflicted on the Dalainor mines near Manchuli, which was reported by the Chinese Eastern railway. All work ceased at the mines and the miners fled with their families.
Simultaneously with Dalainor's bombardment, soviet airplanes were reported to have raided the mining area in the vicinity of Proganichnaya and Suifeng on the eastern end of the railway, where the Chinese Eastern has been buying coal since the Russian supply was severed.

Virginia in an order issued today by cess of what is reasonable." The ruling was made after an investigation which began when insurance affairs in the state came under the com-

MORE WITNESSES TELL OF RIOTS AT MILL

MARION, N. C., Nov. 19.—(AP)— Warning to strikers that "somebody's going to the changing over this; if anybody is scared they had better pull out by Alfred Hoffman, union organizer, was testified today by Charles Vickers, mill worker and former union member in the insurrection and rebellion of five years ago.
"Slim" Puckeridge, union organizer from Tennessee, told Hoffman that strikers here "may have to do as we did in Tennessee," Vickers testified.
Some mention was made of dynamite,
the witness said.
"I'll see to that," the witness quoted Hoffman as saying. Hoffman added, he said, "Somebody's going to the changing over this; if anybody is scared they better pull out. If anybody gives anything away they will take a long ride and won't come back."

On cross-examination the witness denied he had been arrested for forgery, but admitted being tried for non-support of his wife and three children. He was acquitted, he added.
Those on trial are Hoffman, an organizer for the United Textile Workers of America; Wes Fowler, Dr.
Lewis, Lawrence Hogan, strikers, and J. Hugh Hall.

Ernest Morris, mill worker, said Hoffman told strikers to return to a mill house the furniture Sheriff O. F.
Adkins had moved out after receiving eviction papers from mill officials. The furniture was returned by the strikers, Morris said.
Lee Biggerstaff, young son of Bill Biggerstaff, mill worker and deputy sheriff, said Hogan came to East Marion during a strike and told Jim Bryson to "get a gang of fighters and go to Clinchfield."

This was August 30, he said, when troops were called to the Clinchfield village to quiet a disturbance.
"Where was Jim Bryson?" Solicitor
J. W. Pless, Jr., asked.
"He was down there on the picket line," young Biggerstaff said.
How many men were there with him?
"About 35 or 40."
"Lee, did you tell anybody about this statement?"
"Yes, sir. I told my daddy."

Bill Biggerstaff, father of Lee, followed him to the stand and corroborated his testimony. He had been employed by the manufacturing company a number of years, he said, and had been a special deputy there eight years. He denied he had been paid by the mill for his police work.
Sid Mauney, a special deputy from Old Fort, said he was in the Clinch-field village during certain evictions and several members of a crowd said to him, "If you ever come to East Marion we will kill you."

Labor troubles in the Clinchfield and Marion Manufacturing Company were followed by a strike called by the United Textile Workers of America, branch of the American Federation of Labor.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—(AP)—
"Snookie" is a nobody, and his claim to fame, technically speaking, is as dubious as his past.
But to 12-year-old Margaret Smith, the puppy's name is "Snookie," and he is the Washington Club's a few miles competitive gathering of the high-bats of cat-and-dogdom was a minor triumph.

Margaret got the puppy from the Animal Rescue league for her Christmas last year. When she heard about the show she went to see the officials.
"I have a fine puppy," said Margaret, "and if my papa comes home in time maybe I'll have a dollar for Snookie in the show?"
The officials could and did enter Snookie in the open class for poodles.
Margaret came and stood beside him
throughout the judging.

CHEST WILL CHOOSE OFFICERS THIS WEEK

Important Meeting of Service Body Is Set for Friday.

Officers will be elected and changes in methods and administration will be authorized, looking to greater efficiency and economy in Atlanta's social service work, at the annual meeting of the Atlanta Community Chest at 4 o'clock Friday afternoon in the Chamber of Commerce auditorium.

The Chest membership will hear also the service report of Frank Miller, executive director of the Chest, with a record of service by the 30 societies of helpfulness to more than 150,000 families and individuals in the nine months ended October 1. Complete report will be made on results of the annual appeal for public support, which is yet being pressed by a quiet "clean-up" canvass in an effort to reach more closely the goal of $450,000 declared necessary for an effective program of service in 1930.

At close of the general public canvass, November 1, little more than $340,000 was in hand, far less than the amount which the campaign organization had set as its objective—the amount which must be in hand if the menace of human suffering is to be avoided and if the societies are to be saved from the necessity of pinching and scraping to make ends meet. The membership will be asked at Friday's meeting to endorse proposals of the executive committee that have been designed to reduce even further the cost of welfare administration in Atlanta, which already is the lowest on record for social service in important cities, being approximately 8 cents on the dollar handled. The proposals include central supervision of societies accomplishing work in all fields, central purchasing of all agencies, central housing of Chest offices and societies to reduce rent, greater facilities to give employment to handicapped persons, a civic survey of the employment situation to provide a definite policy of operation in the industrial field, and public school instruction in social service work and theories.

Opportunity School Will Open Courses In Hostess Training

A new course in hostess and related training will be offered at the Atlanta Opportunity school beginning Thursday afternoon. This course is designed for women who find it necessary to earn a living and do not care to go into the field of dressmaking, millinery, salesmanship or commercial training. The course will include 10 two-hour lessons in hostess training technique, 15 hours of oral and spoken English, and the American Red Cross course in home hygiene and care of the sick, which will cover a period of 15 two-hour lessons. In addition, it will also include some correlated reading. The training in English and technique will be given in the afternoons at the Opportunity school, and the home hygiene and care of the sick course will be given in the mornings at the local chapter of the Red Cross. Those interested should register through the office of the Opportunity school.

There will be no tuition and only the regular registration fee of one dollar will be charged. Only a limited number will be taken in this course and it will be necessary to register some time during the week.

NEGRO HIT-AND-RUN DRIVER HELD IN DEATH

Damaged Car Which Struck A. C. McClain Found by Police.

A negro hit-and-run driver confessed to police Tuesday that his car Monday night killed Albert C. McClain, 55, at the intersection of Richardson and Washington streets, while other detectives were investigating an accident in which W. L. Williams, a city employee, received what are expected to be fatal injuries and still others scoured the city searching for the hit-and-run driver whose car Sunday night killed Mrs. L. F. Owens in front of her 308 McDonough road home.

The negro who admitted his car killed Mr. McClain gave his name as Robert Marable and his address as the rear of 539 Windeer street. He admitted being the driver of the car after the auto had been found with its motor off and front fender smashed, and glasses identified as those worn by Mr. McClain were found on the running board. The motor was found near the scene of the fatality.

There were no clues to the identity of the hit-and-run driver Monday night, but on Tuesday morning Detectives W. J. Stephens and C. L. Taylor apprehended Marable within two hours after being placed on the case. The negro reported his car stolen, saying that he had left it at 6 o'clock, and that upon returning at 11 it was gone. The fatal accident occurred between these hours.

The detectives then traced the broken motor and arrested Marable. He confessed, and later the names of two negro girls who were with him at the time were obtained. They were Nannie C. Fisher, 440 Wheat street, and Jessie Ward, of 4032 Auburn avenue. The Fisher woman made a signed statement and was released. Williams, who lives at 615 Whitehall street, was reported to be dying early Tuesday night at Grady hospital after he had been injured when his car collided with an auto driven by L. C. Cotton, of East Point, on Lee street early Tuesday. Williams was buried 30 feet. He was unconscious when he reached the hospital. His face was cut badly and he was suffering from internal injuries.

According to Cotton's report to the police his car collided with that of Williams' after the latter had sped from around another car. Williams, according to Cotton, apparently was unable to right his machine after the slight impact with Cotton's. The Williams car, Cotton reported, turned over three times before it finally came to a halt.

The search continued Tuesday for the driver of a hit-and-run car which struck and killed Mrs. Owens as she alighted from a street car in front of her home No. 415 Cleveland street. She has been found, the police said.

FRUIT FLY FOUND IN NEW AREA, SAYS STATE OFFICIAL

On the eve of the lifting of the quarantine against the Mediterranean fruit fly a new place of infestation was discovered in Florida, according to information received Tuesday by Manning S. Yeomans, state entomologist.

Four larvae of the fruit fly were discovered in an orange grove in an orchard nine miles west of Orlando. It was the first time a fresh infestation had been discovered since August 23.

Mr. Yeomans immediately communicated with the plant quarantine and control administration in Washington. He was advised that no alarm was felt by officials there over the discovery, and that it would have no effect upon the newly adopted amendment of the quarantine lifting it as to sterilized fruit.

"No entomologist who was familiar with the situation believed that the Mediterranean fruit fly had been stamped out in Florida. The discovery of a fresh place of infestation will have no effect upon the lifting of the quarantine," Mr. Yeomans said.

CANDY MEETING CITY COMPLIMENT, SECRETARY SAYS

"We held the sessions of our executive committee's meeting in Atlanta out of compliment to the southern business men and candy manufacturers," said Walter C. Hughes, secretary and treasurer of the National Confectioners' Association, which Tuesday held its third executive meeting, the last prior to the general convention in Chicago in December.

Purely routine matters were discussed at the three meetings, and plans were made to continue the extensive advertising campaign of the past three years for three more. Approximately $500,000 is to be spent yearly in this manner, making a total of $1,500,000 expenditure. Pledges toward this end are already being collected.

About 20 of the most prominent candy manufacturers attended the conference at the Biltmore, and the objective outlined here by these executives will be taken up fully at the national meet.

REGIONAL MANAGER OF SEARS-ROEBUCK ON EMORY PROGRAM

L. H. Beall, regional manager of Sears, Roebuck & Company in the southeast, will speak to a class in marketing at Emory University this morning.

Mr. Beall heads the organization of Sears, Roebuck & Company in about seven states. The company now has six department stores, twenty-five smaller retail stores, and three mail order warehouses in the southeastern region. This number is about fifty per cent greater than the number of stores at this time last year.

Mr. Beall will speak on the budgetary control of retailing operations.

FEDERAL OFFICERS BEGIN INSPECTION AT POSTOFFICE

Annual check-up and inspection of the Atlanta postoffice was begun Tuesday morning following the arrival of 16 inspectors assigned to the southeastern section of the country. The inspection will be directed by Charles E. Caine, chief postal inspector for the Atlanta district.

Every phase of postal activities, here, administrative, financial and the general all-around management of the Atlanta office will be examined. The work will run through Thursday, Mr. Caine estimates.

Representatives of the postal service out of Washington, in recent Atlanta addresses, characterized the local office as "one of the smoothest running organizations in the country" and described Postmaster Edward K. Large as "one of the best" postmasters in the service.

$25,488.38 PAID FOR GEORGIA HOGS IN WEEK'S TIME

Georgia Forest Service Credited With Starting Course in High Schools

The Georgia state forest service is credited with inaugurating forestry as a course in high schools in a current bulletin of the United States department of agriculture. The course is given in 100 schools of the state. Members of the state forestry staff visit them periodically and give demonstrations. The plan is to hold a summer camp each year for training selected students who, on satisfactory completion of the course, will be eligible for non-technical forestry work.

ROAD WORK TO BEGIN IN SOUTHERN SECTION

Central Georgia Also Will Get Aid Soon, Tate Declares.

The first indication of the location of early projects under the state highway board's new construction program was given by Colonel Sam Tate, chairman, Tuesday when he stated that work undertaken this winter would be in central and south Georgia.

Colonel Tate was in conference Tuesday morning with Governor L. G. Hardman with regard to a loan of $2,000,000 for highway purposes which the state proposed to obtain under the authority of the anticipated gasoline revenue law which was held constitutional by the supreme court last week.

He announced following the meeting that the highway board at its meeting Thursday and Friday would adopt a resolution asking the governor to proceed in borrowing the money. The tentative date of Monday, December 2, was fixed for the reception of bids for deferred warrants which will then be asked by the governor, he said.

Under the plan of the governor and the highway chairman the $2,000,000 borrowed will be repaid in monthly installments up to December, 1931. Payments will be made from a fund obtained by setting aside, under the authority of the new law, a part of the highway board's monthly income.

Discussing the manner in which $2,000,000 of federal aid money, available to the state when matched by state funds, will be paid to Georgia, Colonel Tate said that it will be necessary for the highway board to accumulate a revolving fund. Each month's construction will be paid by the state from this fund, he stated, after which vouchers will be forwarded to the federal government, which will reimburse the state for half its expenditures on federal aid projects.

Colonel Tate said that his plan was to first award contracts for construction work in central and south Georgia.

This would eliminate troublesome detours in more difficult northern territory in winter months. In the spring and summer, he said, the road crews would move northward.

Capital Will Pay Tribute To Secretary Good Today; Hoover Will Take Part

Body of Secretary of War To Be Taken to Cedar Rapids on Special Train for Burial.

BY RAYMOND Z. HENLE, Associated Press Staff Writer.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—(AP)—The last tribute of the government will be paid tomorrow to James W. Good, secretary of war, in the east room of the White House, where sorrow, triumph and happiness frequently have been written into American history.

In the presence of President Hoover and a distinguished company, the rites of the Presbyterian church will be conducted and later the body will be placed upon a special train to Cedar Rapids, Iowa, for burial Friday.

The death of the cabinet member was mourned in an official White House statement in which President Hoover said it would be not alone for his public services that Mr. Good would be remembered, but also "for his loyal and self-effacing friendship."

While the service tomorrow will be as restricted as possible for such an important figure in public life, the full honors of military burial will be extended. A guard of honor, which took its station shortly after the secretary died, will remain with him until his body is placed in his native soil.

Services at Eleven.

Early tomorrow a flag will be placed across the casket and the secretary's body will be taken on a caisson to the White House, where services, conducted by the Rev. Joseph Richard Sizoo, pastor of the New York Avenue Presbyterian church, will begin at 11 o'clock. Afterward the invited guests, which will consist only of public officials, members of the diplomatic corps and personal friends, will be permitted to pass the casket.

From noon until 1 o'clock, employees of the war department will be given opportunity to pay their respects. The public will not be admitted. In

Girl Convicted In Case of Theft Conceals Name

Who is Marian Johnson?

This question was being investigated Tuesday afternoon by officers of the Fulton county probation department following a plea of guilty by an 18-year-old girl who frankly admitted that the name under which she was arrested is not her own, but who positively declined to tell who she is or where she is from.

Evidently a member of a good family, "Marian Johnson" said that she would serve her time before revealing her identity. She was sentenced by Judge Edgar E. Pomeroy to serve from one to four years at the state prison farm for burglarizing the home of Mrs. C. G. Trowbridge, in College Park.

All the girl would admit to probation officers who questioned her regarding her identity was that she had quarreled with her father and had left home.

Physician Saves Birmingham Woman From Death Plunge

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Nov. 19.—(AP)—While hundreds of downtown shoppers and office workers looked on, helpless to intervene, and while scores of others in adjoining buildings telephoned police and firemen for aid, a Birmingham doctor this afternoon fought for several minutes to save the life of a young woman who was threatened with death in a fall from a fifth floor window of downtown office building.

The rescuer, Dr. R. Y. Jones, held the woman by her arms and shoulders as she dangled outside the window until other occupants of the building, attracted by the doctor's cries for help, had reached the room and had aided in bringing the woman back to safety.

A few minutes later after she had been revived by her sister who had gone with her to the doctor's office. Neither her name nor that of her sister could be learned.

The rescue took place in Dr. Jones' office where the woman had gone for a consultation.

Dr. Jones said the woman was sitting on the window sill when he saw her and that she was loosening her dress which had caught in the window. He said he caught her arms and shoulders just as she slipped over the edge of the sill.

Committee Decides To Award Carrying of Mail to Lowest Bidder.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—(AP)—The interdepartmental committee on ocean mail contracts has worked out a plan of action which Postmaster-General Brown said today should fill the American shipyards to capacity with new construction within six months.

The postmaster-general said the committee had decided to award ocean mail contracts to the lowest bidder. The awards have been held up for three months because of a question of whether the committee would favor the construction of new ships.

Brown revealed the committee had determined the law clearly stated that the contracts were to go to the company making the lowest bid, so long as that company ran its ships under American registry and flew the American flag.

In order to stimulate construction of new tonnage the postmaster-general said the committee would favor companies planning immediate construction of new ships.

"In all probability," Brown said, "another six months will see the shipyard capacity of the country completely filled."

A total of 40 new ships, fast and large enough to compete with any on the ocean, is planned by the companies who have indicated intentions of submitting bids for ocean mail.

The new liners planned for the north Atlantic will cost approximately $25,000,000, Brown said. Other vessels for other routes will be the most modern that marine architecture and engineering can design.

Money for the construction of such ships will be made available from the $25,000,000 loan fund created by the Jones-White act and will be administered by the shipping board and the navy department. Companies planning such vessels can borrow up to 75 per cent of the total cost to be spent on new tonnage from this fund.

Details of the decision of the interdepartmental committee will not be announced in full until after Secretary Adams, a member, returns from Cedar Rapids, where he will go tomorrow to represent the administration at the funeral of the late Secretary Good.

It is understood that Chairman O'Connor, of the shipping board, made a viewpoint that to have companies who bought ships from the board faced in awarding ocean mail contracts.

The committee, however, decided that the law would not allow such a procedure.

A total of $3,000,000 remains to be awarded for the present fiscal year. Approximately $13,500,000 is included in the budget for mail awards for 1931. Contracts will be for a period of ten years.

ARCTIC SEAS SEARCHED FOR MISSING AIRMAN

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—(United News.)—All available airplanes and pilots in the Alaskan area are being pressed into service in the search for Carl Ben Eielson, noted aviator-explorer, who is lost somewhere in the ice-locked seas off the far northern coast of Siberia, officials of the Aviation Corporation here were informed today.

Eielson has been missing since November 1, when he headed for crash landings in the Alaskan area. He was flying across the bleak waters of the arctic seas to rescue passengers on the far-trading motor ship, Nautil, which had been lost in the ice.

The flier was reported lost in a telegram received here today by G. B. Groves, president of the Aviation Corporation. The message came from Frank Dorbandt, Eielson's friend and flying mate.

"Eielson and I left Teller for North Cape, Siberia, on November 9," the message said. "One hour out I turned back. Eielson went on. There was a blizzard and it has been storming since. Eielson was last seen by natives 60 miles off North Cape, but did not land. It was nearly dark and visibility was poor. Will keep you informed."

Officials of the Aviation Corporation wired Dorbandt immediately, suggesting that all available planes in the area be made ready for the search, and that they take off as soon as the blizzard abates.

Groves said that Eielson has been informed that unless Eielson was in a forced landing or crash, the chances are good that he is alive. He had ample provisions, was warmly clad and carried firearms.

If necessary, Groves said, an expedition will be sent out of Seattle to search for the lost flier.

"We have plenty of planes at Fairbanks," Dorbandt said. "Eielson is vice president and manager of the Alaska Airways, Inc., a subsidiary of the Aviation Corporation. He attained international fame when he and Sir Hubert Wilkins flew across the "blind spot" of the arctic from Point Barrow to Spitzbergen."

His report out of Alaska today said that Eielson had a mechanic with him. Officials here, however, said they believed he was flying alone.

JAPANESE SLAYER OF 10-YEAR-OLD LAD DIES ON GALLOWES

HONOLULU, T. H., Nov. 19.—(United News.)—Myles Fukunaga, whose brutal murder of 10-year-old Gil Jamieson caused one of the most extensive man hunts in Hawaii's history, paid for his crime on the gallows of Oahu prison today in the execution of a death sentence.

Nervous and frightened, the 20-year-old Japanese heard a special mass for his benefit and was taken without further ado to the gallows.

The Jamieson boy, son of Frederick Jamieson, vice president of the Hawaiian Trust Company, failed to return to his home from a private school on Oahu in 1928. His father received a telephone call demanding $10,000 on pain of his son's death.

Jamieson was met by Fukunaga at a rendezvous. Fukunaga seized $4,000 from the banker's hand and fled. The boy was found dead two days later in the brush at Waikiki Beach.

AGED CONFEDERATE VETERAN IS HELPED BY YANKEE COPS

CHICAGO, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Frank McCoy, at the age of 84, has found the fight going against him.

He fought in the Confederate army, this white bearded veteran of the army of Virginia, and later he was an Indian scout. Fighting marked the most active years of his life. Now he is old—too old to fight. White haired, white bearded, he found himself today in Yankee Chicago, he who fought under Jeff Davis; and he needed help.

The Hyde Park police heard his story and took care of him last night. Today they were seeking a permanent home for him.

For quite a spell the old man, born in the Kentucky mountains, had been "just going around," as he put it, "trying to make a living." Hard enough for youngsters, doubly hard for an old man, even an old man who fought with Lee and hunted Indians with Buffalo Bill.

But the Yankee policemen of the town in which Lincoln was bornat will take care of Frank McCoy.

Investment Trust Terminates Despite Successful Career

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—(AP)—The management of Separate Units, Inc., a small investment trust, proposed to stockholders today that it close operations and distribute its assets, to take advantage of the high profits which have been made to date, despite the recent crash of the stock market.

The first distribution to be made would be the equivalent of $121 per share for each $100 invested, when the trust was organized less than two years ago. Five per cent cash dividends have been paid during its operation. After settlement of taxes and expenses a further distribution would be made. Assets today total $668,110, with no liabilities, save taxes.

For quite a spell the old man, born in the Kentucky mountains, had been "just going around," as he put it, "trying to make a living." Hard enough for youngsters, doubly hard for an old man, even an old man who fought with Lee and hunted Indians with Buffalo Bill.

But the Yankee policemen of the town in which Lincoln was bornat will take care of Frank McCoy.

RIVER NAVIGATION CONFERENCE IS SET

Important Meeting To Take Place in Atlanta November 27.

The development of the Chattahoochee river for navigation by barges and its advantages to Atlanta and the entire Chattahoochee valley territory will be the subject of a joint conference November 27 at the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, according to J. Ralston Cargill, of Columbus, who is president of the Chattahoochee Valley and Gulf Association, which will sponsor the conference in co-operation with the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce and the Atlanta Foreign Trade Club.

The Atlanta Foreign Trade Club and the Chamber of Commerce will be joint hosts at a luncheon at 12:30 o'clock to be held in Hall No. 1 of the chamber.

Philip Alston, president of the Chamber of Commerce, has accepted an invitation to deliver an address of welcome and a special invitation is being sent to Governor Hardman, who is known to be particularly interested in the inland waterways development of the state. Other speakers will be Henderson Hallman, Charles H. Hoke, president of the Foreign Trade Club, and Harry O. Mitchell, district manager of the department of commerce. It is expected also that members of the United States senate and house committee on waterways will be present. J. Ralston Cargill will be president. Mr. Cargill is one of the directors of the Mississippi Valley Association and is one of the foremost advocates of inland waterways transportation in the country, having appeared before committees of congress on various occasions.

The projected conference will deal particularly with the deepening of the Chattahoochee river from Columbus to the gulf, where it will tie up with intra-coastal waterways system extending to the west as far as Corpus Christi, Texas, and connecting with the great Mississippi valley waterways system and its tributaries. The completion of a navigable channel to Columbus will give Atlanta a joint water and rail rate as far as that point. It is expected that ultimately the canalization of the Chattahoochee will be extended on to Atlanta, which would give this city the same strategic advantage now possessed by Birmingham, which has deep water to the coast through the Warrior river canal.

ANY TIME—ANYWHERE
HALANT GIVES INSTANT RELIEF

If YOU WANT to relieve your colds the simplest, most pleasant way imaginable, use Vapex. Carry it with you wherever you go. Then, at the first irritation, put a drop on your handkerchief and breathe the delightful vapor. Swiftly, surely your cold breaks up—your head clears—sniffling stops. ... The Vapex vapor kills the germs of common colds. Vapex was discovered in England during a terrible war-time epidemic of influenza. Then, it kept chemists in a prominent laboratory immune to infection. Today Vapex is the accepted relief for colds in both Europe and America. ... Use Vapex at night, too, if you are troubled with sleeplessness from a cold. Simply put a drop at each end of your pillow. While you sleep, Vapex fights the infection. ... A bottle of Vapex costs only $1 and contains fifty applications. Each one lasts all day or all night. ... Always insist on V-A-P-E-X in the trim white box with the green triangle at your druggist's. Don't expect the same results with cheaper imitations. ... Distributed by E. ATLANTA PUPILS SHOW INTEREST IN BOOK WEEK

Atlanta's celebration of the 11th anniversary of National Book Week which began Monday, the program to include 48 plays depicting immortal characters from as many books, which will be presented within the week, is attracting great interest among students of Atlanta's public schools, according to supervisors.

A different group of plays is being presented each afternoon in the children's room of Carnegie Library. "King of the Golden River," by students of the Haygood school; "The Three Gray Sisters," by Georgia Avenue school pupils; "The Lonesome Doll," by students of Highland Avenue school, and "Book Reviews," by Tenth Street school students, were presented Tuesday afternoon.

Performances scheduled for Wednesday afternoon by groups of low fifth grade students, beginning at 3 o'clock include: "Book Characters," by Spring street; "Merry Lingo," by Forsyth students; "Columbus," by Fair street; "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," by the S. M. Inman school, and "Uncle Remus," by English Avenue school. Children from the low fifth grades will compete in the second half of Wednesday afternoon's program, and Key fifth graders will present an original play.

Finals will be held at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon climaxing an ambitious program on Friday in which students of low sixth grades will compete. All of the programs are open to the public.

WALTER STEWART SEEKS SUPPORT FOR GUARD SHOW

Walter B. Stewart, at present chairman of the public works committee of the Fulton county commission, Tuesday night appealed for support of the gigantic benefit ball, sham battle and show to be staged November 27 at the City Auditorium by the 122d Infantry, Georgia national guard.

Declaring that "Atlanta's Own" regiment deserves the support and enthusiastic endorsement of citizens in every walk of life, Mr. Stewart exhorted his invisible audience through the microphones of WWSB.

"No other class of citizens deserve the loyal support to such an extent as those who willingly sacrifice their time to keep alive and alert the patriotism among our people," Mr. Stewart said. "Atlanta's national guard is composed of representative young businessmen, most of the officers and a large per cent of the men having seen service on the Mexican border and in the late World War. They deserve the support of Atlanta in a show which they have arranged to give us some idea of the thoroughness of preparation the fine physical condition and the spirit of officers and men in the Georgia national guard."

MRS. A. CARROLL LEADS MUSIC CLUB MEETING TODAY

The regular meeting of the Atlanta Music Club Forum series will be held at 11 o'clock this morning at the Wesley Memorial auditorium, corner of Auburn avenue and Ivy street. Mrs. DeLoe L. Hill, general chairman, will preside.

The study book for this season, it has been announced, is "The Masters of the Symphony," by Percy Goetschius. The program has been announced by Mrs. Armand Carroll, local music teacher and able pianist, who will give the paper on the second chapter, "Haydn and Mozart." It was due to Mrs. Carroll's interest in civic work that the concert series was begun in Atlanta in 1916.

After reading her paper, Mrs. Carroll will play Haydn's "Symphony," and an ensemble arranged for two pianos will render Mozart's "Symphony in G Minor."

A short business meeting will be held at 10:30 o'clock by Mrs. Wm. L. Moore, president of the organization. Miss Helen Knox Spain will talk on current events. Members are urged to be prompt in their attendance, and must present membership cards at the door.

BAND TO PRESENT BENEFIT FOR NEGRO VETERANS OF WAR

The 60-piece military band of the 24th infantry, a negro regiment stationed at Fort Benning, will give a varied concert program in the City Auditorium here December 5, it was announced Tuesday. Funds derived from the concert are to go for aid to disabled negro soldiers of the World War.

The band, one of the best known in the army, has never before played in Atlanta, but has given concerts in other cities in the states and comes highly recommended, those in charge of the benefit said.

Half of the auditorium is being reserved for white patrons. Tickets will be on sale at the Cable Piano Company.

ANDRE SIEGFRIED WILL GIVE LECTURE AT EMORY TONIGHT

Andre Siegfried, French economist, who will speak at the Emory University auditorium tonight, on the subject of "The United States of Europe and the League of Nations," is due to arrive in Atlanta early this afternoon. In addition to having been connected with the French foreign office for 11 years, M. Siegfried is the author of numerous economic books, his most recent being on the United States. The lecture, which will be delivered in English, is open to the public as well as students in the university.

Regeneration Necessary—Jesus answered and said unto him, "Verily,
I say unto thee, Except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God."—John 3:3.

Prayer:
"Come, Holy Spirit, heavenly Dove,
With all Thy quickening power,
Kindle a flame of sacred love
In these cold hearts of ours."

WHAT SAYS—EVERYBODY?

The repeated reiteration on the floor of council, and elsewhere, of innuendoes and thinly veiled charges of the necessity of "palm greasing" to secure action has reached the proportions of an open scandal.

Time and again on hearing these charges, members of council have sprung to their feet, demanding an investigation.

The time has come for such an investigation!

For months charges that certain influences have had to be sought in order to secure desired action on the part of council, or subsidiary branches of the city government, have been openly made in the city hall, and have been rife throughout the city.

They are either true or false and one or the other fact should be established!

The situation has reached a point where a mere committee "investigation" by council will not suffice.

It is time for the Fulton county grand jury to institute a probe that will decide once and for all whether or not any of the members of any department of the city government are fattening off their official positions!

If the point has been reached where, in order to pass ordinances, or to secure positions, it is necessary to buy the influence of councilor board members, it is high time that this fact, if it is a fact, be ascertained.

It is due to every member of council that searching investigation be made, AND THE GRAND JURY IS THE BODY THAT SHOULD MAKE IT.

If there is graft in council—if there are "influences" in that body that must be bought in order to obtain results, it is the duty of the grand jury to find it out.

It should send for the solicitor-general at once and find out from him what he knows about it!

When rumors of crookedness in official circles become as widespread as have those concerning city council, it is due to every honest and faithful councilman and alderman that such an investigation be made at once, and by some other authority than by council.

The grand jury is the place for it.
Such an investigation will either put an end to the harmful rumors and charges of the past year or more, or result in public knowledge of a situation that will "turn the town upside down."

What says the grand jury?

What says the solicitor-general?

What says council?

And, what says The City?

STOP IT—NOW!

Traffic accidents in Atlanta Sunday claimed the life of one victim and sent eight others to the hospital.

On Monday, the record was one dead, one dying and eight hurt.

Two lives snuffed out and 17 of our citizens injured in 48 hours time because of reckless driving and failure to observe the traffic laws!

There is only one solution.

The police must get busy enforce-ing the traffic laws. They should begin making arrests of violators of those laws before instead of after the accidents which are taking the lives and maiming so many of our citizens.

Atlanta's speed laws are exceedingly liberal and there is absolutely no excuse for their being exceeded.
Any man, woman or boy violating them should be arrested!

Our streets have become unsafe for either passenger or vehicular traffic, and it is up to the police to stop reckless driving—and stop IT NOW!

AN IMPORTANT PUBLIC SERVICE.

Approximately 18 years ago the Georgia Power Company brought into existence the real beginning of hydro-electric development in the state. It was at a time when the more conservative investor looked with doubt on the financial success of the enterprise. Indeed, this chief development had as assets in the way of an immediate return, the street railway property and the property of the Atlanta Gas Light Company. Due to the upheaval, incidental to the outbreak of the World War, conditions had so changed that in the short period of six years
the lighting property of this company had developed to support the gas property and the street railway property, otherwise there was at least a possibility that these two parent supports would have been greatly weakened.

During this first six years of development, expansion of a statewide schedule was well-nigh impossible on account of the changed conditions following the World War.
However, beginning some 10 years ago this economic, convenient service in the homes and the factories has spread by leaps and bounds, until almost anywhere in the state one can see tangible evidence of this modern, economic convenience and necessity.

Over south Georgia, due to the far removed location from the primary source of development, it was regarded even four or five years ago as a possibility that might be realized in a long number of years, but no one had the optimism to entertain the hope that it would spread so quickly. By the inter-connection of different companies the most distant section of south Georgia has the same opportunity in the way of rates and unlimited service as north Georgia, although in the latter case the territory is at the source of supply. Therefore, south Georgia is in a position to compete for industrial developments with the same inducements to offer as north Georgia.

The Georgia Public Service Commission soon caught the vision of the possibilities of this development, and while on several occasions its decisions were appealed to the courts because, in the opinion of the company, rates too low were prescribed, time and experience has abundantly justified its position.

The attitude of the commission that the rates should be uniform throughout the territory served by the Georgia Power Company is to be commended.

Just recently the commission held to this view in revising rates for commercial light and retail power.
So it is that now the most distant community in south Georgia served by the Georgia Power Company has the same rates for residential light and residential power, commercial light and retail power as the cities of Atlanta, Macon, Rome, Augusta and Gainesville enjoy.

Another important decision recently promulgated by the commission cuts in half the line rental charge for rural electric lines. Already some 1,500 miles of lines have been constructed and 600 additional miles are in contemplation during the next 12 months, traversing various rural sections where the general public has shown a disposition to take the service.

The modern conveniences and necessary power thus afforded is one of the helpful means of re-juvenating depleted agriculture in the rural sections of the state.

Maybe we had better have a standing committee on the investigation of congressmen accused of drinking so that others can learn where they got it.

A Macon man lies blinded in a local hospital from drinking shellac which a friend purchased for him "in a paint store." It is lucky he did not see his finish.

"Stop!" is the most expensive word in the English language; disregarding it in traffic and using it in telegrams.

There are two ways to lose money in Wall Street. The other way is entrust millions of securities to 15-year-old messenger boys.

Atlanta's beautiful new skyscrappers should be provided with soot scrapers.

In other days one was cautioned to save for a rainy day. Modern youth saves for a wet night.

The talking movie has ruined almost every good place to talk.

The panhandlers controversy in our fair city beggars description.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

Fleg's
Solomon.

The poet who wrote that masterpieces, "The Life of Moses," has also taken for his theme the history and the legends of Solomon. The poet has done for legend what it always demands, he has taken the old and made it new through his profound insight into the spiritual and unchanging realities. The "Solomon" is worthy of a place with the "Moses," both of them works of an exalted, sacred and, deeply spiritual poet; and the translation shows the same skill and understanding. Solomon as we see him is called to a high destiny, and down to earth he is made to be a man, a king, a ruler, a statesman, a man of peace, whose hope is in the wisdom of peace, which Solomon never has known. He is a man, but in his pride he took the place of God upon earth. Then follows the story of his downfall through his pride and his lust; how one by one his gifts of understanding were withdrawn from him. But sometimes, as from the depths of the years, in the midst of his debauches he hears a gentle voice.
An strange poem, this one woven by
M. Fleg, in which the Arabian Nights, the Song of Songs, Proverbs and the childish legends of East and West are blended in a fiery imagination of a poet with eternity in his heart.

Adam's Birthday.

The anniversary of the entrance into the world of a man to whom we owe countless great men fell recently.
It is forgotten by an ungrateful world.
Yet without the man the world would have been a different place. He was Cicero, Caesar, Barthol, Shakespeare, Benedict Arnold, Judas, Midas, James, Joyce, John Doe, William III. or the Duke of Burgundy, for that matter, he marks a Paris paper. Adam was his name. His birthday, the word is not to be taken literally, was determined by the late John F. Brady, of Baltimore, a direct descendant. Mr. Brady set up a monument to his illustrious ancestor in 1909; for 17 years he held a celebration on October 28. Now Mr. Brady is dead. Like Adam, he is forgotten by most of his 1,950,000-000 surviving blood relatives. As in the case of almost every great figure in history, conflicting conceptions of the man and his character, of his mind and his physical characteristics, honor today have come down to posterity. The earliest biographical treatise on him, written by a contemporary, pictured him as a person of human weakness and few qualities of greatness, throwing away his happiness to satisfy a woman's whim.

The Baby's Shoes.

M. Dubreuil, a workman who recently visited America and worked for a time in the Ford factories, has written a book on his experiences and discusses the question as to whether it costs the average Frenchman more to live than the average American. He gives some interesting data. In a week of work, the American working man earns a dozen eggs in 55 minutes, the Frenchman in 150 minutes. The pound of sugar keeps the American wage-earner busy for 7 minutes, the French for 35 minutes. Likewise through a list of standard foodstuffs.
The advantage is all with the American. A 6-to-9 ratio on potatoes, 1 to 1 to 1 to 9 ratio on roast pork. On coal the American has nearly a 1 to 4 advantage. It is less on clothes, but on cheap cars (if the French workman ever could buy one), the American wins by 3 to 13. The sole necessity of life which is cheaper for the Frenchman in the ratio of 7 to 15, groceries, is not a matter of course, there the comparison is false, if one considers the kind of lodging available for, and accepted by, the workmen of the two countries. The American has his bathroom, his central heating and his own little garage; the Frenchman has to be content with the most primitive sanitation, no heating and he has no need for a garage.

Sermons To Live By

BY ELAM FRANKLIN DEMPSEY.

Text: "What things soever ye desire, when ye pray, believe that ye receive them, and ye shall have them."
Mark 11:24.

So strong is this statement that many questions are constantly being asked about it. In "Prayer: a neglected weapon," offers some very suggestive thoughts in connection with this amazing promise of our Saviour. He says forth "the fundamental law according to which prevailing prayer works."

The fundamental law of prayer is implicit in the law of love. "Jesus Christ indicated this law when He said:
"What things soever ye desire, when ye pray, believe that ye receive them, and ye shall have them."

"For many years this was a mystery to me—how can I believe that I shall receive unless I have some basis for ground on which that faith can rest?"
"Faith is not mere feeling."

"Faith—real faith—cannot exist unless it has absolute certainty on which it rests. In later life I have seen how plain from I. John 5:14, 15.
This is the confidence which we have in Him, that if we ask anything
according to His will, He hears us;
and if we know that He hears us, whatsoever we ask, we know that He has the petition that we desired of Him."

"There are two ways, either of which can make us quite sure: First,
if we can find a promise in which God promises to do the very thing we are asking, then we can be quite sure that He will do it. We are asking according to His will."

"Second, if we can find a prayer written down for us in the word of God, we can take that prayer and ask it, with the absolute confidence that it is according to His will, for God never puts into our mouth a prayer that He does not purpose to answer."

Knowing the power of this prayer and how to offer it, we should be more faithful in its use.

The Blind Man's Failure To See It Doesn't Change the Fact That Day Follows Night

By Robert Quillen

There seems to be in nature a law of balance that matches one extreme with another to preserve the average.

Where the earth's surface is uneven, every valley is matched by a hill of equal proportions, as waves of the sea are matched by the hollow between them.

The greater the tree above ground, the greater the root system beneath it. As the pendulum swings in one direction, so it will swing in the other. The smaller the animal, and thus the greater its surface in proportion to bulk, the greater its capacity for the production of heat.

That is the law of balance—of compensation—and its jurisdiction is not confined to the physical world.

Nature strives always to maintain the normal level. For every enthusiasm there is a corresponding depression for every smile there is a sorrow that multiplies strength a corresponding reaction and weakness.

And since nature's laws are consistent in principle, affecting large and small alike, who can doubt that the law of balance equalizes handicaps and benefits as it equalizes the leaves of grass?

Fortune and misfortune come to us all, one balancing the other, and the evil who prosper must suffer, while the righteous who suffer eventually have their reward—not in some mythical hereafter, but here and now.

It is the law. You may scoff at the idea, remembering wicked ones who fared well and righteous ones who died in want, but what do you know of the secret hearts of men and how do you know what is good?

Those who seem unfortunate may be happy, and those who seem most fortunate may have heavy hearts. Good fortune is not measured in dollars and cents.

Rest assured, the law does not fail. The balance is kept. It could not be otherwise in a world of competing forces.

And thus it follows that every ill fortune that comes your way is an assurance of good fortune to follow—every delay of compensation a guarantee of multiplied benefits held in store.

If you have a certain weekly allowance and draw but half of it, or none, your present self-denial leaves more to your credit; if you are entitled to sufficient good fortune to balance your woes, the longer it is delayed the more you may expect.

But, no; it is a law. Payment isn't always made in kind; the onlooker frequently is deceived by appearances and mistakes evil for good;
"Whatsoever a man soweth" was spoken of good fortune as well as bad.

Cigaret Smoke Analyzed and Confirmed Smokers Found Wanting.

There is a lot of difference between the smoke drawn through a cigarette and the smoke that is given off from the burning end into the room. The smoke drawn through the cigarette is called the "mainstream" and that gives off the most toxic and carbon monoxide. Dr. Emil Bogen, of Cincinnati, has investigated the question scientifically. He finds that the mainstream, the smoke drawn into the mouth, contains more carbon monoxide than the sidestream smoke, the smoke that curls into the air from the burning tip, is acid and irritating because of the ammonia in it; it is also alkaline because of the ammonia; but the sidestream smoke is given off from the burning end of the cigarette because combustion at the tip is complete, from the presence of plenty of oxygen, so that the sidestream consists mainly of carbon dioxide and water vapor, and is not so toxic as the mainstream.

The ammonia in the sidestream accounts for the irritation of nose and eyes of a non-smoker in the room with a smoker; or it may account for the irritation of the smoker's nose and eyes if the smoke from his own cigarette gets into his nose or eyes. Holding a lighted cigarette in the hand and drawing the smoke into the mouth is a much healthier habit than drawing the smoke into the mouth and drawing it into the room without having asked consent of all present, has solid grounds for its recommendation and at least instructed in the rudiments of courtesy.

In a blindfold test Goodman found that the smoke drawn through a cigarette was less toxic than the smoke drawn into the room. The smoke more carbon monoxide than the side-stream smoke, the smoke that curls into the air from the burning tip, is monia in it; it is also alkaline be-stream smoke is given off from the burning end of the cigarette because combustion at the tip is complete, from the presence of plenty of oxygen, so that the sidestream consists mainly of carbon dioxide and water vapor, and is not so toxic as the mainstream.

American tobacco was found to yield the highest amount of nicotine, West Indian tobacco the next highest, and Indian tobacco the lowest. The difference between the amount of nicotine in the three types of tobacco was not great. Some so-called "de-nicotinized" cigarettes were found to contain rather more nicotine than West Indian tobacco.

Considerable nicotine condenses in the stump of the cigarette from the smoke as it is drawn through. Therefore, Bogen says, it is better to draw the smoke into the mouth and draw it into the room without having asked consent of all present, has solid grounds for its recommendation and at least instructed in the rudiments of courtesy.

The appointment of Howard Coffin was first urged upon the president several months ago by Colonel
A. Mann, manager of the Hoover southern campaign. The president is understood to have expressed a desire at the time to have the Sapelo Island man who first gained attention as association with him, but questioned the suggestion that Mr. Coffin would be entirely acceptable as a representative of the southern states in view of his long residence in Detroit, where he is still prominently identified with the automobile industry.

Georgia Ancestors.

Colonel Mann, however, as well as others interested in his selection, pointed out that not only has he been a resident and extensive property owner of Georgia for a number of years, but that his ancestors came from the state.
In short, Coffin is a Georgian, and persuaded to the suggestion that he might fill a future cabinet vacancy is also understood to have impressed the president.

Still another argument presented by Mr. Coffin's friends was that his appointment would also be pleasing to leaders in the automotive industry. In short, Coffin has received with him as much enthusiasm in Detroit and Michigan as it would in Georgia.

All of this discussion of Mr. Coffin is a publicity campaign shortly after it became known that the president had not included a southern man in his cabinet, despite the fact that four southern states had broken away from their democratic moorings and cast their lot with the republicans in the last national election. Colonel Mann went to the White House to emphasize the importance of the selection from the standpoint of future party activities in the south. Mr. Coffin on one occasion joined the colonel in these protests. Assurances are said to have been given them that a representative of the section would be named for only the first vacancies to occur.

AUDIT OF WARDEN'S BOOKS EXPECTED SOON

Council Committee Called To Meet Friday Afternoon.

On the heels of another demand from Mrs. J. E. Andrews, president of the Atlanta Woman's Civic Council, that books of City Warden William Johnson be audited, Councilman W. R. Johnson, chairman of the benevolence and pensions committee of council, to which the first demand was made, announced he will call a meeting of his committee for 3 o'clock Friday afternoon at the city hall.

Mr. Johnson had not received Mrs. Andrews' letter, but stated that pressure of business had prevented a meeting of his committee sooner.

The audit demanded would be a detailed account of the orders the department has issued, to whom issued and the amounts of each. A fund of $40,500 was set up by council for the department and another $1,500 was made through a bequest of H. T. Iman the first part of this year. Mrs. Andrews' letter points out. Since that time an additional $8,000 has been appropriated.

It is the expenditure of this money that Mrs. Andrews is asking about. She also is demanding to know why the city warden declined to render assistance to an individual she reported to his office as needy.

Councilman Johnson invited all those interested to attend the committee session.

LOCAL ITALIAN COLONY TO GIVE DANCE TONIGHT

The Atlanta Italian colony will sponsor a dance at 9 o'clock tonight in the club hall of the Circolo Italiano at 1000 Peachtree street, according to announcement of Emilio Volpi, secretary. Prison Crowded Worse Than Ever, Board Declares

Wanted: By the state prison commission, a jail house made of some elastic substance capable of being stretched to almost extremity.

There was a time, hazy now in the memory of members of the prison board, when the state prison farm at Milledgeville had ample room for its inmates. In those days the capacity of 500, for which the prison was built, was thought amply sufficient to care for the needs of the state.

But the day when it housed only 500 prisoners is long past.

Last week a statement was given out by the board that 835 prisoners were confined at the farm, and that its capacity was taxed to the limit. By some ingenious method 37 additional prisoners have been inserted into the place.

They are sleeping on pallets and cots, taken up and placed aside during the daylight hours.

And the end, according to members of the board, is not yet in sight. The crowded conditions are caused by an influx of county prisoners, sentenced on misdemeanor cases, which, in the nature of things, is apt to go on forever and ever. Hence the need of some plastic medium for the construction of jail houses.

BEGGAR IS HELD IN JAIL PENDING PROBE BY COURT

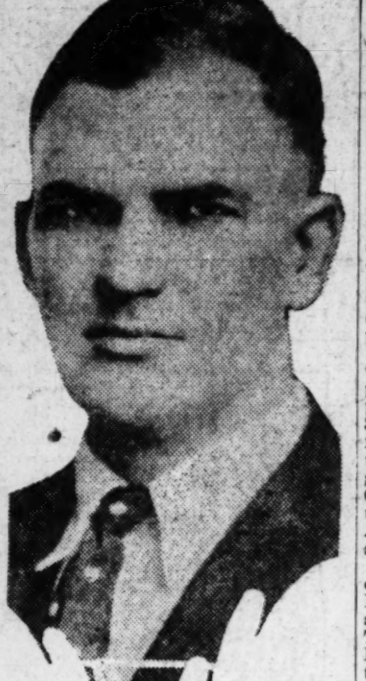

With Harry Miller, who claims to be a World War veteran, in Grady hospital following a collapse in the detention room at the courthouse, officials of criminal court of Atlanta began an investigation of the man's claim that he has a sister living in Texas who will take care of him if released.

Judge Jesse M. Wood, following a hearing at which representatives of the American Legion said no record of Miller's alleged war service could be found, sentenced Miller to serve 12 months for vagrancy, with an understanding that the defendant will be turned over to his sister if his story can be verified. Miller was arrested following complaint that he had been begging with a story of having been wounded in the war, it was said.

Howard's division of Fulton superior court to serve from 2 to 10 years on each count, consecutively, or a total of 20 to 100 years. The 20-year sentence is effective if Mack behaves. If he misbehaves, then the longer sentence is to be served, according to Georgia laws.

TUCKER TRUSTEES DECLARE AUDIT SHOWS BALANCE

An audit of the books of the Frances Clemens Tucker Fund for educating poor, worthy girls, made following charges in a superior court suit that the estate was being mismanaged, resulted in a report from Richardson, Jackson & Davis, certified public accountants, that the accounts are in balance, according to a statement issued Tuesday by O. E. and M. C. Horton, trustees of the estate.

The suit was filed by Mrs. Myrtle J. (Hailey) Murrell, who alleged that she was a cousin of Mrs. Tucker and that the Hortons had loaned her a sum of money from the fund for her education instead of giving her the money. The plaintiff said that she paid back the $400 loan with 4 per cent interest after she finished school.

In the statement issued by the Hortons, the suit was termed "frivolous," and the Hortons pointed out that the education fund was established on a basis similar to the Joe Brown Fund at the University of Georgia.

The auditors' report showed that the value of the estate has grown from $44,571.61 in 1917, when turned over to the Hortons, to $56,375.97 at the present time.

Mrs. Tucker died of pneumonia during the influenza epidemic of 1917, and she was buried in Silver Brook cemetery at Anderson, S. C. Recently the body was exhumed under a court order obtained by Attorney Sam E. Murrell, and the viscera was examined by Clemson college analysts, for traces of poison. The report of the examination was that no trace of poison was found. Attorney Murrell said that the examination was made to set at rest rumors which had been circulated regarding the cause of her death.

BE ON YOUR GUARD, MOTORISTS! "FREEZE-UP" WEATHER IS COMING

SNOW AND COLDER! That's what the weather man will be predicting very soon. Just one look at this picture makes you think about getting some Denatured Alcohol put in your car. Better play safe and have the nearest garage or filling station put some Denatured Alcohol in your car today. It's the only sure way to protect yourself against costly repair bills later on.

CAR WON'T START! This careless motorist left his car standing in the cold too long . . . motor froze up and the starter couldn't turn it over when he stepped on the button. That certainly sounds like a lot of trouble . . . but it may be worse. Perhaps the radiator is broken or the cylinder head cracked. Wise motorists are getting Denatured Alcohol put in their cars . . . it ends all this inconvenience.

YEP, IT'S CRACKED! That's the bad news the repairman is telling this motorist. Same old story . . . left his car outdoors all night . . . down went the thermometer. And now there's a big repair bill staring him in the face. Play safe . . . use Denatured Alcohol, the most economical anti-freeze you can get.

Take 2 minutes today to protect your car against freeze-ups with DENATURED ALCOHOL

IT'S due, car owners. Coming any day . . . maybe tonight! Winter . . . with its frosty mornings, below-freezing nights, dangerous day-time temperature . . .

Take no chances with that car of yours. Once frozen it's never the same . . . and in less than 2 minutes you can avoid all danger of such a happening.

For it takes only 96 seconds to make your car ready for freezing temperatures at any place where you buy gas and oil.

Just drive in to the nearest garage or filling station that shows the orange and green Denatured Alcohol sign . . . Without the slightest delay, with no bothersome overhauling whatever . . . they'll consult a handy chart, put in as much Denatured Alcohol as your particular make of car requires, check it with an Alco-Tester . . .

And away you drive ready for winter with your cooling system protected by the surest, safest, most economical anti-freeze you can get.

Sure . . . because with Denatured Alcohol you can protect your car to any degree of temperature!

Safe . . . because Denatured Alcohol is harmless to rubber and metal alike. Can't hurt water pumps, rot rubber hose, gum-up motors, cause short circuits.

As for its economy . . . figure it out yourself! You buy only what you need and pay for only what you use. You have no special overhauling costs to meet. And you can buy Denatured Alcohol for a fraction of the cost of certain preparations.

Denatured Alcohol is approved by every manufacturer of motor cars and enthusiastically endorsed by all radiator makers.

Remember, too, that Denatured Alcohol is backed by 25 years of successful use in 30,000,000 cars . . . and you can get it any time, anywhere . . . as easily as you can get gas!

The Industrial Alcohol Institute, Inc., Graybar Building, New York City.

PLAYING SAFE! Cold spells won't catch this driver unprepared. He's having his radiator filled with Denatured Alcohol and checked with the Alco-Tester.

SIX INDISPUTABLE FACTS

You've heard a lot about anti-freezes. Here are the real facts in the case . . . the indisputable reasons why more motorists use Denatured Alcohol than all other anti-freezes combined.

- 1 An entire season's supply of Denatured Alcohol usually costs less than half as much as one filling of some preparations.
- 2 Denatured Alcohol is harmless to radiators, engines and electrical systems. It will not corrode metal parts or attack rubber hose and does not cause leaks.
- 3 No special service is required to make your car ready for winter. Just put Denatured Alcohol in your radiator as it is.
- 4 Every car manufacturer approves Denatured Alcohol, and the firm that made your radiator is also emphatic in its endorsement.
- 5 If your protective solution is lost through accident, the cost of replacement with Denatured Alcohol is usually one-sixth that of replacement with some preparations.
- 6 You can get Denatured Alcohol anywhere. Service when you need it, wherever you are.

Dr. Thornwell Jacobs, president of Oglethorpe University, in a statement issued Tuesday called upon the public to assist the university authorities in preserving the school campus as a bird sanctuary.

The 600-acre plot, including the district around Silver Lake, has been made a game refuge, said Dr. Jacobs, and warnings against hunting of any kind therein, have been posted. Dr. Jacobs expressed confidence that persons would be willing to co-operate with the authorities in protecting the preserve, adding that those who have not done so perhaps were unaware that it was a sanctuary.

One can do a little singing in the rain, but flying in the rain, especially for Uncle Sam's air mail pilots, isn't such a big success. Therefore, after eight days of rain and uncertainty air mail service once again is functioning on schedule.

Substituting for the big open ship which usually leaves Atlanta for Chicago at 9:25 a. m. is a new Stearns cabin plane, which took off for the Windy City Tuesday morning, the first scheduled passenger trip from Candler field, in a cabin ship.

The big ship arrived at the field Monday afternoon, making the southward trip without mishap, carrying three passengers, the pilot and air mail. The ship, capable of carrying 500 pounds of mail and four passengers, is powered by a Pratt & Whitney 525-horsepower engine. The trip to Chicago from Atlanta is made in a flying time of 6 hours and 45 minutes.

Officials of the Interstate Airlines, Inc., stated Tuesday that the Chicago trips in the future would be made in cabin planes exclusively.

It was learned Tuesday that George A. Shealy has tendered his resignation to Southern Air Transport, Inc., to become connected with the Curtis-Wright Sales Corporation. He will be associated with Doug Davis, who recently accepted a position as regional sales manager with the concern. Both men will have their headquarters in Atlanta.

A pilot from Fort Worth is expected to arrive soon to take Shealy's place, it was said by John E. Gill, S. A. T. manager here.

Work was begun Tuesday on construction of an addition to the Beeler Blevins' hangar to increase present available storage space by 50 per cent, it was announced. The new wing, which is expected to be completed in about 10 days, is being built on the west side of the present structure and will cover a 30x100 foot area. Adequate space for moving planes in and out of the hangar will be afforded under the new arrangement when it is completed.

Fritz Kreisler

To Give Atlanta

Concert Tonight

Fritz Kreisler, one of the world's foremost violinists, will be heard by a capacity audience at the Atlanta Auditorium-Armory, at 8:30 o'clock tonight, judging from the advance sale of tickets. Mrs. Wilmer L. Moore, president of the Atlanta Music Club, which is sponsoring the concert, announced Tuesday.

This is not Kreisler's first appearance in Atlanta, but his arrival will be greeted with acclaim by countless lovers of music. He brings with him four world-famous violins, which he has spent a lifetime acquiring. One is a rather small Stradivarius, not large in tone, but of exquisite quality, which he often uses for recitals in small halls. The second is a Gagliano, the work of one of the most famous Florentine violin-makers of the 17th century.

The third, which was made by Josef Guarneri del Gesù, and was formerly the property of the great Wilhelm, is valued at fifteen to twenty thousand dollars. The fourth is also a Guarnerius, long held at a fabulous price by the House of Hill in London. In recently obtaining this priceless instrument, Kreisler has fulfilled his desire to possess the finest violin in the world.

In addition to his incomparable talent, Kreisler's artistic genealogy reaches directly back to Corelli, founder of the greatest school of violinists the world has ever known. Corelli was born in 1653, and Kreisler in 1875, but they are connected by a human chain of masters and pupils.

Tickets for the concert are on sale at the Phillips and Crew Piano Company. The program for this evening includes De Falla's "Jota," Pasquini's "Sonata in A Minor," Bach's "Chaconne," Tchaikovsky's "Concerto in D Major," and a fantasy of Russian themes by Rimsky-Korsakoff.

JASPER, Fla., Nov. 19.—(AP)—Three gypsy women, charged with stealing $872.50 from the First National Bank of Jasper while they told the fortune of Horace Lewis, assistant cashier, were held in jail today while other members of their tribe sought funds to make good the stolen amount. Five automobile loads of gypsies were held for investigation.

Two of the women approached Lewis' cage with the offer to tell his fortune. As they thrust their hands through the grating to seize his hand a third woman scooped up all the cash within reach at another window.

The trio ran from the bank, but was caught by officers, who also took the rest of the tribe into custody.

J. H. Moore Tuesday drew a fine of $1,000 and a 12-month term, said to be a record in criminal court of Atlanta, following jury conviction on a technical charge of possessing whisky.

Moore was said to have been the pilot of a rum car. Officers testified that he warned a whisky car following his machine, using a spotlight and his hand to signal the other driver.

Judge Jesse M. Wood ordered that the 12-month term be suspended on payment of fine. Appraisal bond was fixed at $2,000. Officers said that no whisky was found in Moore's car, but that 162 gallons were discovered in the car which had been trailing Moore's machine without lights.

3 minute relief for Pain

Housebroken

BY PAUL HERVEY FOX

SYNOPSIS. Tom Davies, football star of a small eastern college, plays brilliantly in his last game. After the battle Bruce Stenog, his roommate, asks him to go to the dance that night to escort a girl who'd been asked down to the college for him. Bruce explains that he wishes to avoid meeting one of the chaperons. Tom agrees to substitute for him. The girl, Susanne Branch, makes an instantaneous appeal to him. She tells Tom that she is engaged to marry a friend of her father's. After she leaves, Tom writes to her. Before the Christmas holidays Tom meets Susanne in New York. Susanne breaks her engagement to the other man when she and Tom realize they love each other, and Susanne invites Tom to her home to meet her family. Susanne goes down to the college for commencement. After graduation Tom's father gives him a small house at Stamford as a wedding present. Susanne and Tom are married in November, and for the first few months are perfectly happy. One day Tom stays in town to have dinner with some college friends, and on his return Susanne upbraids him. The storm blows over, and a few weeks later he promises to marry a friend fight with some of the boys. Susanne creates such a scene that Tom gives up the idea. About a year after their marriage Bruce returns from a trip to the coast. Tom is delighted to see him. He asks Bruce to occupy the guest room at their house. They have dinner in town and write home late. Susanne is furious. She refuses to get up the next morning to meet the two men who were to take them to the town. Tom asks Bruce as a special favor to return with him to Stamford. That evening on their return from New York, Susanne greets them at the door. She is cordial to Bruce. The next day she starts a flirtation with Bruce.

INSTALLMENT XV.

THE TRUTH.

Bruce's mind flashed back to that first evening at the club with Tom. He had missed the last train then. Now he had missed it with Tom's wife.

"We'll take a taxi," he said. "I hope Tom won't be worried."

"A taxi will be frightfully expensive. But it's nicer than a train anyway."

She had not mentioned Tom, he noticed.

He kept up some kind of glib talk as they headed for the Post road. He was acutely uncomfortable. If only she had not been Tom's wife! He could have made love to her, or got rid of her easily enough then. As it was, he did not know what to do.

"I'm afraid Tom has given you a pretty unfair picture of me," he said. "As a matter of fact, I'm really quiet."

"Apparently."

He ground his teeth together softly and said nothing. Did she expect him to make love to her, kiss her? Did she actually—

A sudden thought seem to drive all the breath out of his body. A thought, that was more than suspicion, that burned its way into his mind with such positive truth that he felt suddenly like a fool for not having seen everything at once!

Tonight she was coming home late, as Tom had come home late before. Tonight it was Tom who would worry. But more than that, infinitely more arresting, was the purpose behind her willingness to flirt. It explained everything, her tension, her taut nerves. He heard again those fragmentary words of bitter quarrel which had been the first words he had heard her utter. She had told Tom to send him packing and Tom had refused.

Driven by some unguessed obsession she had deliberately set out to flirt with him, arouse Tom's suspicion and his jealousy. She had set out to break their friendship, to cause an unpleasantness between them that would separate them forever and leave her possessive and triumphant with Tom to rule as she liked for the rest of her days!

So that was it! He ought to have seen this at once. No wonder naive invitations had puzzled him. He ought to have known that she was an amateur, playing the game without pleasure.

While he thought he noticed that she was growing sleepy, or allowing herself to appear so. Her small graceful head drooped and found his shoulder.

With perfect confidence now, he lifted her and propped her up.

"O. . . . I was . . . I was falling asleep."

"We're almost home."

She bent forward and peered out of the window.

In the darkness of the cab Bruce was thinking hard. There came suddenly to his mouth a malicious little grin. . . .

No sooner had the cab itself come to a halt outside Tom's door than the door itself snapped open and Tom stood there shading his eyes and looking out. He gave an anxious and yet relieved shout.

"What happened? What was the trouble? Where were you?"

The poison was working already, though he had no knowledge of that.

Constitutional Convention To Revise School System Needed, Dr. Brittain Says

Georgia Has Outgrown Present Regulations,
Tech President Declares
in Address.

The need of a new constitutional convention to revise the educational statutes of the state was stressed by Dr. M. L. Brittain, president of the Georgia School of Technology, in an address Tuesday before the Civitan Club. That the provision established at the constitutional convention of 1877, by which the state educational institutions are still regulated, are as inappropriate for modern conditions as the ox-cart would be a mode of travel, was a point brought out by Dr. Brittain in dealing with the future of education in Georgia, after outlining the history of education here.

Dr. Brittain delivered his address under the title of "Education in Georgia."

Starting with the first days of public education in the state, the noted educator traced the history of its development up to the present. Following this, he gave a brief summary of the problems confronting the educators of the state and touched upon the needs for the future in a general way.

By nature, the Georgian was an individualist from pioneer days until late years," Dr. Brittain stated. He cited the trend of the state authorities in charge of education to develop state institutions in an individual manner and without co-operating with others, as being characteristic of the history of education in this state.

Added Difficulties Early. An added difficulty "came from the founding of our public schools during the times when our people were embittered by reconstruction," Dr. Brittain said, adding, "Consequently, growth was much slower than in northern and western commonwealths, though the same situation, in more or less degree, is found in other southern states from Virginia to Texas."

In tracing the history of educational development in Georgia, Dr. Brittain referred to the "poor schools" as a significant feature. In this connection he said: "During the early years, the legislature occasionally paid some slight attention to education, and appropriated $250,000 at one time early in the century, and a few years later $300,000 to be divided between the academies and these free elementary schools. Unfortunately, however, the general assembly stigmatized the free-school part of the work by the very name. They called them schools for the poor and the designation 'Poor Schools'—which was for the most part undoubtedly correct—continued to the period of the Civil War. Indeed, the echo of this stigma has been heard down to our own time. The expression 'common schools' instead of public schools, as they should have been called, shows the lingering traces today."

The educator pointed out that as early as 1838 the Georgia legislature appropriated $350,000 for educational purposes but reports to the assembly showed that out of a possible enrollment of 83,000 pupils only 25,000 had been in attendance. Although magistrates were required to make a list of poor children entitled to the benefits of the state appropriation, only 53 of 93 counties of the state in 1840 made any application for any part of the fund. Most of the indifference then manifest was due to the insulting distinction between the academies and the poor schools, he said.

One of the consequences of this distinction was that in 1850 one-fifth of the white people of Georgia were illiterate and as late as 1890 16 per cent could not read and write. The percentage of illiterates among the negroes was practically 100 per cent by reason of the fact that laws were passed forbidding the teaching of people of color, Dr. Brittain said.

Hard Times After War. Even after the Civil War education received scant attention until 1867 when what is now known as the Georgia Education Association was formed but no beginning was possible until 1869, he declared. It adopted a report and the legislature, in the main, followed its outlines and General J. B. Lewis became the first state school commissioner. It was in 1877 that work actually began. Endeavor to establish a system of schools was hard because of the handicap arising from the creation of the commission during the "carpet bag era."

It was 30 years after the convention of 1877 before counties were permitted to tax themselves, though Bibb, Chat-ham, Richmond and Glynn had secured this authority prior to the convention. In 1895 a constitutional amendment affording substantial relief in the matter of raising school revenues was adopted and 75 of the 100 counties took advantage of it at once. In 1916 the levy of at least some taxes for school purposes was made compulsory.

There followed, by legislation, the lifting of many restrictions, an appropriation of $100,000 to aid high schools and high schools jumped from seven in 1908 to 308 at present. In 1910 followed the compulsory school law, and although dependent upon public sentiment to a great extent, has produced some good results, Dr. Brittain said.

Higher education, like elementary, appeared to get a good start in Georgia with the granting of a charter in 1785 to the University of Georgia. Other institutions of higher learning, the State College of Agriculture, at Athens; Agnes Scott, at Decatur, and Brenau, among these, followed. Agricultural high schools, too, were established in Governor Terrell's administration in each congressional district.

Dr. Brittain summarized his talk in the following paragraphs: "Fairly, too, it should be added, that we have grown without much careful planning. Two things more than all else are needed: 1. A diagnosis by educational experts, and, as a result, a modern system from the elementary schools to the university system."

Too Much Duplication. "At present, there is much duplication of effort and expense. The creation of higher institution had taken place largely by chance and frequently by political design and without the knowledge of educational needs. Without the destruction of any of our institutions, a system of senior and junior colleges for men and women would result in economy and efficiency. The basis of our higher education must always be founded upon the three great branches of the university system: The college of liberal arts at Athens, the agricultural state college in the same city, and the Georgia School of Technology in Atlanta. These, with a sufficient number of colleges for women and junior or normal institutions for elementary teachers, created from the district A. and M. schools, with the great work done by the denominational colleges, would be made to take care of the state's educational needs without difficulty."

"To carry this into effect, however, a new constitutional convention is urgently needed. We have outgrown the one of 1877. Part of it is excellent, and the leaders of that convention were prudent and wise in many of its provisions. As to education, they were hopelessly indifferent and prejudiced for the most part, and governed largely by their fear of radical mischief and government. For instance, they plainly specified that the university should receive only 'donations' like an itinerant preacher's pound party. Educationally the constitution of 1877 is as ill-fitted to our needs in 1928 as the ox cart is in comparison to the automobile for transportation. Georgia's illiteracy statistics show fairly well the progress made in spite of these difficulties. They are as follows:

	White	Negro
1870.....	27.4	92.1
1880.....	23	81
1890.....	16	67
1900.....	11.9	52
1910.....	7	36
1920.....	5.5	29.1

"These figures show that definite progress has been made, and that the citizens of this state will continue their efforts until this commonwealth shall be in truth, as well as in name, the 'Empire State of the South.'"

Hotel Cloister Apartments Open At Early Date

SEA ISLAND BEACH, Ga., Nov. 19.—The Cloister apartments, the new addition to the Hotel Cloister, opens at an early date and will provide a nearly place wherein to spend a comfortable winter in the south, affording many conveniences and cozy comforts. The Cloister Apartment building, located on the waterway, suggesting the charm and dignity of a Venetian villa, is surrounded by the Hotel Cloister gardens and overlooks the blue Atlantic and enjoys the health-giving sweep of ocean breezes and semi-tropical sun. It was designed primarily to provide more homelike comforts than can be found at a hotel. The rooms are large and flooded with sunshine. Comfort and charm have been provided by the specially designed appointments and furnishings in harmony with the historical background of coastal Georgia.

The wide terraces overlooking the waterways and the attractive sun parlors, where bridge parties and afternoon concerts, by the Hotel Cloister orchestra, add a new note and a new standard of gaiety, and comforts of living that have never heretofore been encountered along the South Atlantic coast. An outstanding feature that will appeal to those seeking a healthful, well-appointed home for the winter is its atmosphere of restful seclusion away from the noise, confusion and nerve strain of crowded places, but at the same time enjoying all the facilities for good living, sport, relaxation, rest and play found at the most famous European spas.

There are many novel, thoughtfully-planned features of architecture and room arrangement, providing a maximum of restful conveniences. The rooms are spacious, beautifully furnished, with extra large closets and dressing rooms and the club-like patios and palm-shaded terraces invite peaceful relaxation. The kitchenette apartments have electric refrigeration, electric stove, incinerator service and outside package delivery, and every apartment has telephone, steam heat and maid service, and can be rented with or without meals at the Hotel Cloister. Excellent accommodations are provided for maids, nurses, chauffeurs, etc.

Among the guests at the Hotel Cloister this week are Dr. and Mrs. Thomas C. Phillips of Milwaukee, Wis.; Miss M. L. Debutantes' Fashion Revue Proves Distinct Success

Picture used on Fashion Review program drawn by Miss Helen Spencer Callaway, member of the Debutante Club and pupil of the art class of the High Museum of Art. A black and white fashion drawing, good in design and surprisingly convincing for so young a student.

BY MME. POMPOU.

THE sight of Miss Augusta Porter taking tickets at the door, wearing a vivid crimson chiffon evening gown, very low in the back with the suggestion of a train, was at once a guarantee to everyone that the Fashion Review held Monday night at the Biltmore, would be a success. And such it proved to be. Everyone was convinced immediately that Miss Myra Boynton, chairman of the Fashion Review committee of the Debutante Club, knew exactly what she trancing little-girl frocks and enormous little-girl ribbon bows—Miss Peggy Poindexter with a curly blond bob, and Miss Myra Boynton with dark curls falling to her shoulders—the delight of the audience was overwhelming. Everyone present began smiling, smiles that increased but never faded for an instant, until the play was over.

And it was a dazzling sort of success from start to finish. The ballroom was packed long before time for the review to begin. Expectation was on tip-toe; everybody was in the highest spirits—real carnival spirits. When the review began, with the entrance of the heralds bearing announcement placards and wearing en-slender in effect and greatly exaggerated in length—with a party gown of taffeta printed over with large softly-bright flowers (sounds queer, but that's what it was and highly decorative, to be sure) made with a slender, pinched-in waist effect and wide, low ruffles on the skirt.

Miss Grace Powell moved along the walkway in a beautiful and fragile gown of black chiffon, very modish but by no means extreme. All the gowns were remarkable for beauty, quality and color. One woman wanted this one, another that one; but every woman wanted the gown Grace Powell was wearing to take home with her. The long, slender sleeves were finished with cuffs of a new sort of passermenterie which created the illusion that the wearer had a multitude of beautiful new bracelets on her arm, blue, green, mauve and gold.

ERMINE, beige lapan, white fox, black pointed fox, many beautiful kinds of fur were exhibited. One muff and one only was shown—a tiny thing of beige lapan, the size of a large—not too large—honey-dew melon, about the same shape and not so very different in color.

The Debutante Fashion Show was produced by appreciative spirits with a real feeling for art in the affairs of daily life. It moved swiftly. There were no delays. Everything was perfect, every moment of it a joy. Mr. Leon Frohns not only provided the gowns, the wraps, the furs and the jewels from his shop, but studied the style, the height, even the temperament, of each model.

Never again, perhaps, will he have such models, professional or otherwise. When Boyce Lokey and Sarah Lay in their long, flowing black gowns and jewels, the latter wearing a white wig, no one who had ever read Tennyson could have refrained from thinking—"Divinely tall and most divinely fair."

Miss Helen Spencer Callaway, who furnished the black and white fashion drawing for the cover of the Review program, decided she could not, after all, take part in the performance, as the rehearsals would interfere and conflict with her art classes at the High Museum of Art.

THE pink taffeta little-girl frock worn by Miss Myra Boynton in the wedding scene had already been sold at the time she was wearing it. As soon as the show was over it was pressed, shrouded in tissue paper and packed off to its rightful owner.

Miss Boynton was one of the debutantes who was saying, "May I help you?" in one of the swag Atlanta shops a short while ago. She found it necessary to ask for a few week's leave of absence to go through, at least, a part of her many debut parties, but she will soon be saying the same thing again at the same old place.

Stubborn Coughs Ended by Recipe, Mixed at Home

Here is the famous old recipe which millions of housewives have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up a stubborn, lingering cough. It takes but a moment to prepare and costs little, but it gives real relief even for those dreaded coughs that follow severe cold epidemics.

From any drugstore, get 2½ ounces of Pinex, pour it into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. Then you make a full pint of better remedy than you could buy ready-made for three times the cost. It never spoils and tastes so good that even children like it.

Not only does this simple mixture soothe and heal the inflamed throat membranes with surprising ease, but also it is absorbed into the blood, and acts directly upon the bronchial tubes, thus aiding the whole system in throwing off the cough. It loosens the germ-laden phlegm and eases chest soreness in a way that is really astonishing.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form. Nothing known in medicine is more helpful in cases of distressing coughs, chest colds, and bronchial troubles.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded. (adv.)

Gainesville, Ga.—Mrs. F. A. Watson, of 43 West High Street, this city, says that she has used Thedford's Black-Draught for fifteen years, when needed for such troubles as she mentions below:

"I took Black-Draught 'or indigestion and the tired, worn feeling that comes from biliousness."

"When I get up in the morning and my mouth tastes bad and my eyes burn and I feel light-headed, I know that I must take something. And after I heard how good it was, I took Black-Draught. A few doses relieve me so much—make me feel well and strong and clear up my head."

"I don't know what I would do without Black-Draught. It seems to regulate the bowels and rid one of impurities."

BEFORE the tiniest few had identified the pajama girl, Miss Katherine Howard glided through the green room curtains (ballroom lobby on less important occasions). "Who's that?" "Who is she?" began all over again and continued, running from one scale into another, until the very last model had disappeared and the review was over.

Miss Howard wore an oyster-white satin negligee, rather short in front and sweeping to a great length in the rear and with it coral dresyars. All of this was as beautiful and as becoming as any exquisite evening gown could have been.

The debutantes stepped along the eighty-five foot walkway, their audience beaming and cheering below them, the great glittering chandelier of the Biltmore ballroom (not so far away now, they were up on a high platform) just over their heads and at the far end the altar ready for the bridal scene hung with silver gauze and smilax, and banked with great giant white chrysanthemums.

Such tall girls, princesses in their own rights, slender as lily stems, wonderful to see!

The gowns were all very long, most of them touching the floor and many of them trailing far behind. When the heavier material the last foot and a half of each of the evening gowns were of chiffon or net, showing (when dark) light stockings through their transparencies. Showing also vividly beautiful slippers of all colors and materials. Dahlia satin slippers with high, diamond-studded heels were worn with a black satin and net gown. Blue satin slippers (strong in color), diamond strapped across the instep, were considered the proper thing with a very long, slightly trailing, flesh-colored evening gown trimmed with white fox fur.

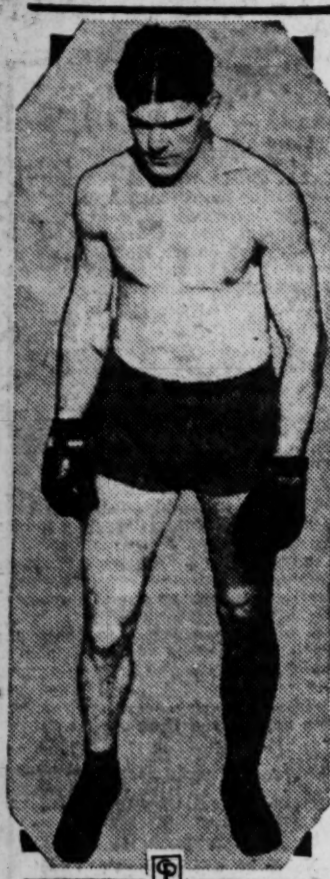

The effect of contrasting colored slippers worn with evening gowns was decidedly new and just sensational enough to be attractive. There were slippers with large buckles with small ones, with ankle straps, some were of the opera type, all were furnished by J. P. Allen.

TO continue: The jewels were marvelous—channel being more generally worn—gondoles (court earrings), for instance, reaching to the shoulder. Miss Leila Mason wore a dazzling pair of these—very

On Present Tour

Young Stribling, Georgia heavyweight, is batting .500 on his present tour of European rings. Monday in his second fight since arriving in Europe, he lost to Signor Cornara, Italian battler, on a foul blow in the third round of a 15-round bout, in one of the wildest fights ever seen in London. In his first fight, the Georgian defeated Maurice Grinelli, European champion, giving him an even break so far. The Prince of Wales saw the Georgian hand the Italian a bad beating only to lose on a foul.

SMITHIES, B. H. S. DRILL FOR TILT

By Roy White.

Although no heavy work was done Tuesday afternoon, both Boys' High and Tech High football players held one of the best workouts of the past few weeks in preparation for Friday's game at Spiller field. The atmosphere was cool and the youngsters were very active chasing up and down the field.

Boys' High worked behind closed gates on Henry Grady field and their work was confined to the lower end of the field due to the mud. Coach Doyal had his regular running a lengthy signal drill on one side while he was in charge of the scrums in a dummy scrimmage on the other side.

Doyal stressed passing and end runs in the scrimmage, and those plays will be used in scrimmage against the regulars this afternoon. Today's scrimmage will be the only hard workout of the week and Thursday the Hurricane will be given another light work in signal drills, passing and punting.

GOOD PUNTER.

The Hurricane will have little to worry in the punting, for in Captain Elliott, the Hurricane has one of the best punters in the city prep league. Bothwell, Howard and Davis, also can punt well and Coach Doyal will rely on good punting to keep his team out of danger.

At Piedmont park, the Tech High eleven worked out under the watchful eyes of Coaches Tolbert and Alexander. The Smithies have been unable to find a suitable field on which to practice and the idea of secret practice has been done away with at Tech High.

There was no hard work in the Smithy camp. Practically all of the afternoon was given over to punting, passing and dummy scrimmage. Tech High will have its hardest workout this afternoon when the only scrimmage of the week will be held. The scrums will run Boys' High plays against the regulars.

SEEKS KICKER.

While the scrubs were tuning up and getting ready for today's scrimmage Coach Tolbert was casting around for another capable punter. Heavy Hammond has been doing the kicking for the Smithies but Tolbert is taking no chances and is grooming Beans Huddell, Captain Hutt and Bullington, a reserve back, for kicking duty in cases of necessity.

There are no injuries in the Boys' High camp and Captain Elliott, Davis and McCall, who were suffering from minor bruises and ailments from the Lanier game, have fully recovered and will be in good shape for Friday's game. They appeared to be in excellent condition Tuesday afternoon.

Michael Welch, Tech High guard, who was injured in the Charlotte game two weeks ago, is suffering from a dislocated elbow and is definitely out of the game for Friday. His place probably will be taken care of by Theo Brooke, who has played good in several games as a substitute line-man.

Tickets for the game will be placed on sale this morning at Rosier Brothers, the Atlanta Athletic Club and Trammel Scott's on North Broad street.

TARHEEL SQUAD STILL HOPEFUL OF 1929 TITLE

Two More Victories, Losses by Vols, Tulane Would Turn Trick.

By Eddie Brietz.

Associated Press Staff Writer.

From the Southern end of the conference comes the warning that North Carolina may yet figure in the melon-cutting that goes with the awarding of the Dixie football championship. With five scattering victories against only one defeat, the Tarheels are waiting around the corner ready to pounce the minute Tulane or Tennessee weakens.

The Tarheels are a long shot, but they are not yet out. The dope in the south this year has been more uncertain than ever. Anything is apt to happen and North Carolina, with its best team in ten years, is praying for a break.

TWO MORE GAMES.

The Tarheels have two more conference games, with Virginia and Duke. If they win them they will finish with a record of seven wins and one defeat.

That would put them out in front if Louisiana State whips Tulane and Tennessee drops one, either to Kentucky or South Carolina. The standings then would be:

WON LOST PCT.
N. Carolina 7 1 .875
Tennessee 6 1 .857
Tulane 5 1 .833

But for one bad quarter in the Georgia game, when the Bulldogs came from far in the rear to overcome a lead and nose out a win by one touchdown, the Tarheels would be out in front now with six victories inside the conference.

They have won handily from Maryland, Georgia Tech, Virginia Poly, North Carolina State and South Carolina. Georgia is the only team that beat them.

North Carolina has scored more points against conference opposition than any other conference team.

Another team that has been the victim of bad breaks is the Crimson Tide of Alabama.

TIDE INJURIES.

Hailed as the strongest eleven in the conference before the season opened, a series of injuries to backfield stars so crippled the team that it lost its first two major tests to Tennessee and Vanderbilt.

But now, with the plunging Tony Holm setting a ruthless pace, the Tide is rolling along in a manner highly pleasing to Dr. Wallace Wade, the head coach. It jolted Kentucky out of the running and they decided to play what is left of Georgia Tech's Golden Tornado.

With Alabama awarded the hard luck championship, Georgia Tech and Mississippi must divide the consolation for being the biggest disappointments.

JACKET LOSSES.

Tech lost a lot of good men, but it retained just as many as it lost. Before the season started the experts admitted the Tornado might lose two games. So far it has dropped five out of seven, the last four of them in a row.

Mississippi tackled the hardest schedule of any conference team with a team that is much better than that has shown. Looking that opened up Vanderbilt was a hard blow to Homer Hazell's big machine. It hasn't been able to get going since.

Choctaws Play Mexicans Today

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 19.—(United News.)—The University of Mexico plays its second international football game tomorrow when it meets the Mississippi College team on Valbuena field as part of the inauguration of a new government recreation ground.

Louisiana College defeated the Mexican team 59 to 0 recently, but it is believed the latter had improved sufficiently to hold Mississippi to a more even score.

The Mexico University team is coached by Reginald Root, former Yale star. President Emilio Portes Gil has been so struck by the possibilities of football as a Mexican national game that he is financing the Mississippians' trip here at governmental expense.

The invaders arrived today accompanied by the college president, Dr. James W. Proctor. Proctor received a cablegram from President Hoover wishing the Mississippi team good luck.

The Mississippi team was presented to President Portes Gil. The president said he hoped other American football teams would come to Mexico.

Firpo Is Winner

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Nov. 19. (P.)—Mike Firpo, 175, swarthy light-heavyweight of Tampa, staged a remarkable comeback tonight at Waterfront park to defeat "Chicken" Jack Webb, 185, of Waverly, Ga., by knockout in the eighth round of the feature battle of the American Legion.

Quintero Victor

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Nov. 19.—(P.)—Young Manuel Quintero, Tampa, 142 pounds, carved out a wide margin of points here tonight to win a decision in 10 rounds over Dwight Eyzon, of Little Rock, Ark. Quintero had a two-pound weight advantage, but his superior skill and ring generalship won him the scrap.

Little Mike Donahue's weekly letter always has a juicy morsel of football information in it that has escaped the news.

His comment on the Tulane-Sewanee game reveals that even so great a team as the Green Wave actually can have a bad day.

It also shows just what a great football player Billy Banker is—not that Bill needs any added indorsement as one of the country's best backs. Mike says:

"A fighting Sewanee team gave a very flat Tulane team plenty of trouble in their game Saturday. In fact, there was just one individual between Tulane and the loss of the game and that was Banker.

"With no help whatever during most of the game, he kept up the fight single handed and on the first play in the second half he presented a Sewanee touchdown by a very clever piece of defensive work. Sewanee received the kick off and the receiver came back through the whole Tulane team as far as Banker, who was playing safety. The runner came down the side lines and when he got to Banker, had one interferer in front of him.

"Quickly sizing up the situation, Banker instead of waiting to fight off the interferer, anticipated his charge and driving into him forced the runner out of bounds with his own interferer. It was about the only way that a touchdown could have been prevented, and a touchdown would probably have won the game for Sewanee in the condition of things at that time. Tulane was in a bad slump, and a team in that condition is lucky to win against anybody.

"Warrell, of Sewanee, showed the best punting of the year. His punting kept Tulane playing in her own territory for most of the first half."

MIKE GOES ON.

Other observations from Mike's letter follow: "McGugin has done wonders with his material this year, but to be at the peak in three successive games is impossible. . . . Holm at full-back and Singleton at either guard or tackle give Alabama two men in a class by themselves this year. . . . Coach Alexander's squad will be stronger in the two remaining games. . . . Georgia has as hard a game Thanksgiving Day as it is possible to have in the Conference now. Fortunately the Bulldogs have a ten-day interval before they have to play Tech. . . . Jupiter Pluvius has played about the best game of any of them this fall. He has been right on the ball all the time and has covered a lot of ground."

BILL KEEFE BEWILDERED.

Bill Keefe, of the Times Picayune, gripped by the sad error of judging a football team by one performance, thinks little of Vanderbilt and not much more of Tennessee, so his following Monday comment shows:

"Back from Knoxville, glad to have seen the Tennessee Vols in action. Too bad the game wasn't played over a fast field. Too bad, too, Vanderbilt did absolutely nothing that would lead one to believe the Commodores have a football team. And try as we might, we can't see how Alabama can have 'the best team in the Conference,' as Bill Alexander says of the Crimson, if Vanderbilt beat them. Tulane, we feel sure, is four touchdowns better than Vanderbilt—if not more.

"Tennessee played a great game against Vandy—probably played over its head. Maybe that's what made the Commodores look so bad. The Tennessee forwards fought like wildcats either on offense or defense and there's no questioning Gene McEver's ability.

"McEver, they say up in Tennessee, is the toughest nut that ever wore a uniform. They haven't seen Bill Banker, of course, or they wouldn't say that. But Mac is real tough. He has had 'time out' called for him only one time in six years of football and that was in high school when he had to change pants. Banker never has had to change his pants—consequently hasn't needed any time out at all.

"Tennessee was all tuned up and keyed up for the Vanderbilt game. That probably was Tennessee's supreme effort. But it must be remembered one of Tennessee's touchdowns was a gift, and, as we have said all along, Georgia certainly didn't look like as good a football team as Georgia looked at Columbus, or as Georgia Tech looked here.

By the same sort of reasoning Tech looked like a champion the day it defeated Florida. And Florida looked like a champion the day it defeated Georgia. North Carolina looked like the best team since The Four Horsemen the day the Tarheels defeated Tech.

Georgia looked like the best team in America the day Yale fell down. Vanderbilt looked like the best team in a decade the days it won from Alabama and Tech.

Tulane looked like a national champion the day it defeated Auburn and no doubt like a very poor team the day it defeated poor little Sewanee.

THE LAW.

Football teams have good days and bad days; strength is relative, not absolute; the winner looks good and the loser looks bad; two touchdowns really is no margin; and a few other maxims as old as the game itself might be brought to bear on the final ranking Bill gives Vanderbilt, Alabama, Tulane, Tennessee and the others.

The season performance must be considered. The very fact that teams that play strong opposition do not finish undefeated once in a blue moon is one of the considerations that makes football so fascinating. Also, these pointless debates as the season wanes.

FUNNY LIKE THAT.

The Southern league directors decline to elect Joe Engel, president and owner of the Chattanooga Lookouts, to a seat on the board. They say Joe is connected with the Washington American league club and they do not want major league ownership of any club in the league.

Yet Joe's vice president is elected a director and Chattanooga continues to play ball in the league.

Only the directors of the Southern league could have achieved such a feat of parliamentary acrobatics. The action in barring Joe from the directors' meetings patently is a move to cover their stand in discouraging the sale of the Atlanta club to Clark Griffith.

Yet there is Joe and the Lookouts playing baseball right along. Isn't that funny?

Eventually the league moguls will do the decent, sensible thing and accept Joe Engel as a regular president, after a year or so of taking their share of his gate receipts.

PETRELS HOLD EDGE ON BEARS IN TEN GAMES

Oglethorpe Has Won 7 Games of Series With Mercer.

With the past scores in the record books, Oglethorpe and Mercer are looking forward with intense interest in the eleventh game between the two rivals Saturday afternoon at Hernando stadium. Oglethorpe and Mercer always forget their season's records when they meet.

It is always the climax of the Petrel and Bear schedule and every game in the past has been full of spectacular plays and thrills. The Petrels have won seven of the ten games and Mercer has been victorious in the other three. Two Oglethorpe victories have been by one point margins and one of the Mercer victories was by two points difference. The Bears have won three of the last four games.

In four of the last five games one of the two rivals have scored on the kickoff or in succeeding plays and in several instances those scoring plays had a most important part in the victory. They have been a "one play" game, in which the evening plays turned the tide of victory.

Although Mercer has not had its greatest season, the Bears are ready for the Petrels and Coach Russell is leaving no stone unturned in preparation for the game. A victory over Oglethorpe Saturday will mean success for the Bears, as in former years, the Oglethorpe-Mercer game, always is the season's highlight.

The Oglethorpe faculty has announced that if the Petrels defeat the Bears Saturday the boys would be given a holiday for Thanksgiving. Should the Petrels win over Mercer it would give the Bears a clean slate for games within the state and a strong claim on the mythical state title.

Coach "Natty" Campbell, who has scouted the Bears, has a raft of notes and diagrams on Mercer plays and those diagrams are being studied by Coach Robertson and the Petrels this week.

Citadel beat Mercer by the same margin that it won over Oglethorpe, just after the Petrels had won from Georgia. That is the only team which both elevens have played.

Two leading prep schools, North Georgia Aggies and G. M. A., have entered men in tonight's bouts at Ben's invitation and are expected to provide plenty of opposition for the home boys who enter the ring. Boys from Elberton also are on the cards.

With the approach of cooler weather Ben plans to stage his fights more frequently. The next series is scheduled for December 18, with others to follow on January 10, January 31 and February 22. All these programs are being devised as tests for the Southern division. A. U. U. elimination tournament, scheduled to be held at the club on March 14, 15 and 16. It is hoped that several of the boys who are boxing on the cards at the club will be sent to the national matches.

Paddy Harmon Resigns Post

CHICAGO, Nov. 19.—(P.)—P. T. "Paddy" Harmon, who planned and saw the achievement of his dream of the Chicago stadium, tonight resigned as president of the corporation operating the $7,000,000 sports arena. Harmon presented his resignation after a long conference with the board of directors of the corporation.

Harmon's connected with Chicago sport dates back 30 years. He was asked to resign as president of the organization "for the benefit of the stockholders," said Sidney N. Strotz, secretary and treasurer of the corporation.

Strotz explained that the board was not dissatisfied with Harmon's management, but felt that an experienced business man should handle the corporation's business affairs.

During the eight months the stadium has been open, Harmon has promoted two championship boxing matches, as well as several other attractions which drew record "gates" for indoor entertainments.

A successor to Harmon was not selected at Harmon's meeting. Harmon will retain his holdings in the corporation and will continue as a member of the board of directors and of the executive committee.

"Some weeks ago I requested that I be permitted to resign as president, but it was deemed advisable that I continue until certain details were completed," Harmon said. "At today's meeting my resignation was accepted and I am now at liberty to devote my time to other business interests."

Teachers' College Defeats Lambuth

MAYFIELD, Ky., Nov. 19.—(P.)—Murray State Teachers' college triumphed over the Lambuth college team, of Jackson, Tenn., here today, 14 to 6, while a crowd of 2,500 cheered Mayfield's first college football game.

The Murray team scored in the first quarter when Brodie went off tackle for 3 yards. W. Wells added the point from placement. Lambuth's score came in the second quarter when Johnson passed to Nichols from the 15-yard line. Water failed to add the point.

Murray scored again in the second period. Haynes going through center. W. Wells added a point from placement.

Murray made 22 first downs to 10 for Lambuth.

New Dixie Ace

SHIPWRECK KELLY Kentucky

Shipwreck Kelly, Wildcat Star, Rises To Prominence Among Conference Backfield Stars.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Nov. 19.—(P.)—Young John Sims Kelly, of Springfield, Ky., is the newest addition to the crop of backfield sensations streaking across southern grids.

They call him "Shipwreck" and not without reason. His dazzling running against Clemson started Kentucky off on a 44 to 8 rout of the Tigers in a game which began with the Wildcats the underdogs.

The wreck of Clemson, which had won six games without a slip and was doped as one of the strongest of the Dixie contenders, started when Kelly dashed 47 yards for a touchdown from scrimmage. He speeded the disintegration of the Tiger speed with another long touchdown journey and then rested while his mates ran up the score.

"Shipwreck" who is a triple-threatener, lighted the path for the Wildcats in earlier games, dashing to three touchdowns the first four times he carried the ball in a varsity game. He added a 65-yard run for a touchdown to his record against Washington and Lee and then counted nine touchdowns in the next five games.

He also does much of the Wildcat punting.

A. A. C. BOXERS CLASH TONIGHT TO APPEAR HERE

Eight Bouts on Card. George Zaharias and Paul Jones Will Meet Tuesday Night.

Henry Webber, wrestling promoter who will revive the mat game for Atlanta fans this winter, has arranged the first match of the bout between Jim Zaharias and Paul Jones for next Tuesday night at the auditorium.

Webber will put on two heavy-weight matches. The first match arranged will find Paul Jones, the hook and scissors artist who appeared here last winter, meeting George Zaharias.

Zaharias is the new Greek sensation. He is after Jim London for a match and hopes to win the championship of Greece which "Jeem" now holds.

Zaharias is 24 years old, is six feet tall and weighs 220 pounds. He comes here with the understanding that if he beats Jones he will get another chance in the Atlanta ring.

The second match will be arranged today or tomorrow.

Webber, a former wrestler, announces that he will produce only the best matches for Atlanta. He asks the fans who may have grown skeptical because of former promoters here to give him a chance by coming to see his matches.

The matches will be held each week at the auditorium.

Sharkey Offered $45,000 for Bout

BOSTON, Nov. 19.—(P.)—Jack Sharkey, of Boston, today was offered 35 per cent of the gate to meet the winner of the bout between Jimmy Maloney and K. O. Christner at the Boston garden Friday.

The offer was made by Promoter Eddie Mack. Sharkey was offered $45,000 as his share.

MILAN, Italy, Nov. 19.—(P.)—Roberto Roberti, Italian heavyweight who fought with some success in the United States a year ago, announced today that he had refused offers to return to New York.

He has decided to remain in Italy until he wins the European championship.

EXILED PLAYERS BANNED FOR REST OF YEAR

Men Not Allowed To Return Even If Deficiency Is Made Up.

By Ralph McGill.

None of the three scholastically ineligible Georgia Tech football players will be readmitted to the squad this fall even though they should succeed in becoming eligible for the Auburn and Georgia games.

This was the announcement from the coach's office yesterday afternoon. Tech has three men ineligible who are very valuable football players, two backfield men and a line-man. They would have an excellent chance to reach an eligible status this week. They will, however, have to wait until next fall to play any more football.

The Jacket eleven, with the new line-up, is showing signs of reaching a coordinated condition for the first time this year. It played perhaps the best football a Tech team has played this year in losing to Alabama, where two breaks prevented the Jackets from launching their offense.

RUSK'S RETURN.

The Alabama game marked the return to condition of Captain "Cedar-town" Rusk. He has been injured all season, yet he played every minute of the Alabama game against a line of huge proportions and not only took care of his own position, but aided the guards a bit.

Hudson Edwards, the substitute guard who came through in splendid style for the Jackets, declared that it was Rusk's advice and encouragement that got him together for the game and some occasional help which aided him in making what coaches declared to be an excellent showing. So excellent was it that he is to start against Auburn.

The new lineup sent Vance Maroon from fullback to his old position at tackle, and Gene Strickland from halfback to fullback. Strickland's substitute, was thrown into perhaps the hardest game of the year at a very vital position. He made comparatively few mistakes and played a most creditable game.

HOPEFUL SIGNS.

It is this new lineup which shows signs of clicking, which gives indications of getting together for a unit. There will be no changes in it.

"I don't think it is fair to the men who have played all year to permit men who have been ineligible to return to the squad," said A. Alexander, the man at the helm of the Jackets yesterday. "A football player owes a duty to his team to stay eligible and keep up with his work. Georgia Tech demands that of him. If he fails, then the men who do keep eligible in all fairness must be kept first. That will be my policy now and I think it will be some incentive to the men who let themselves get on the ragged edge scholastically to perk up and study more. The requirements are existing and they may as well learn that they have to keep up and can't be going on and off the squad."

The Jackets went through a signal drill yesterday that was more exacting than any they had in a long time. The scrimmages are off the menu for the first three days this week.

WORK FOR AUBURN.

"Some of the other teams over the south may be showing their confidence with regard to their Thanksgiving Day games," said Coach Alexander. "They have improved a lot and they were not a bad football team against Georgia."

Mike Miles, Tech backfield coach who scouted Auburn, declared that Auburn showed a well-coached team and one which is sure to improve a lot in the time they have for work before playing Tech.

"They stopped Georgia's running attack at first," said Miles. "It was the pass which started them on their downfall. With a little more practice they will be hard to beat. Auburn may have been easy early, but now we are seeing better every day. We will give careful attention to the preparation for the game."

NO REAL HURTS.

There are no real injuries on the squad. Joe Westbrook and Warner Mizell are suffering from sore leg muscles, but will be in shape for the Auburn game.

Much of the attention this week will be devoted to Strickland at fullback and to the line. Strickland will be used in the backfield in the remaining two games. The backfield is running signals with accuracy and power. Work with the line will be devoted largely to the defensive angle. There were too many leaks in the Alabama game.

Purdue Fears Overconfidence

CHICAGO, Nov. 19.—(P.)—What ails Purdue to win the Big Ten football championship if it loses to its most traditional rival, Indiana? Is the question Coach Jimmy Phelan is asking his Boilermakers.

Confronted with the dangerous signs of overconfidence which invariably comes with a title, Coach Phelan is using psychology, philosophy and hard work to preclude chances of an upset in his team's invasion of Indiana for its final game Saturday.

"Unless you add Indiana to your list of victories Saturday," he told the Boilermakers, "not a Purdue man anywhere will recognize you as holders of the Big Ten championship. Neither will I."

Second Night Game.

SANFORD, Fla., Nov. 19.—(P.)—Sanford will see a second night football game this season. Stron University freshmen and Southern College yearlings, will play here Friday night of this week. It was announced today by municipal authorities.

Yale-Harvard Game Is Outstanding Battle on Program Saturday

ALBIE BOOTH IS EXPECTED TO SEE ACTION

Clash Doped To Be Most Thrilling of Any Between Two Teams.

By Walter Trumbull.

(Copyright, 1925, by the North American Newspaper Alliance.)
NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—Yale beat Princeton without Albie Booth, but couldn't beat Maryland without him. Winning football is largely a state of mind. Rockne knows this and makes use of it generously. Adam Walsh, an All-American center and present Yale line coach, said to me:

"Rockne plays on the emotions of his men more than any coach I ever saw. You know he's trying to get you, he gets you anyhow."
"Bill Roper is another who talks his men into playing better than they know how. But Roper had a tough job this season. With a senior team, ordinary counts for little. They merely listen and they say wearily, 'He was in better shape last year.'"

BOOTH'S CHANCES.

Booth probably will get into the Harvard contest, but, unless he has fully recovered from a ripped tendon, it is to be hoped that he will only get in long enough to earn his letter.
"To play an injured star is fair neither to the opposing team nor to the boy. If his injury is augmented, there are always those who will say that his adversaries tried to 'get him.' Moreover, a youngster has use for his legs all through life. Football, as remarked by Tack Hardwick in the second half of the Dartmouth-Harvard encounter, is only a game."

Yale-Harvard meetings always are thrilling, but Saturday's encounter should be one of the most thrilling of the long line. Harvard has a mighty good eleven and young Mr. Wood can throw that football. It is doubtful

Bradley Meeting Benefits Orphans

LEXINGTON, Ky., Nov. 10.—(AP) Approximately $20,000 is available today for Thanksgiving and Christmas dinners for a number of Kentucky orphans as a result of the second annual one-day charity race meeting held yesterday at the Idle Hour estate of E. R. Bradley, thoroughbred breeder.

Threatening weather reduced the attendance to about 5,000, as compared with the 8,000 of last year.

The feature of the six-race card was the $5,000 orphanage stakes at the future distance, won by Manta, chestnut two-year-old filly by Cudgel-Paloma, with C. W. Moore's Gold Step second and Uncle Luther third. The winner paid $22.60 in the mutuels to win.

In presenting a silver trophy to Brownell Combs, Lexington, owner of Manta, Governor Flem D. Sampson made a short address.

The crowd probably contained more notable than any other Kentucky racing crowd of equal size. Sixty-two yearling thoroughbreds brought a total of $121,700, an average of $1,945, at a sale last night.

RAYBACK TWO.

Way, of Penn State, ran two kickoff back to touchdowns in one game against Dartmouth. That was in 1919. Bray, of Lafayette, ran a kickoff back to a touchdown against Pennsylvania as early as 1890. Sprackling, of Brown, did it against Carlisle in 1900, and Daly, of Army, did it against Navy in 1901. The first of these plays that old-timers remember is the one in which Watson, of Yale, ran a kickoff back to a score against Harvard in 1881. Watson was a great back.

Wisconsin was concerned in several of these spectacular plays. Eckersall, of Chicago, ran a kickoff back to a touchdown against Wisconsin in 1904; Steffen, of Chicago, did it in 1908; Capron, of Minnesota, did it in 1911. But in 1901 Cochems, of Wisconsin, ran a kickoff back to score against Chicago, so the ball, in the course of time, traveled both ways.

The cub reserves are getting in shape for a game with Sidney Lanier High school in Montgomery Friday afternoon. The players have had the season while the others are recruits from the battalion league. They lacked signal practice which will be given them consistently by Coach McFadden in the practices between now and Friday.

Intercollegiate passes accounted for three of the varsity touchdowns. Captain Howell Long intercepted one aerial heave on the yearlings' 20-yard line and ran behind perfect blocking for a touchdown. Jones returned his pass 10 yards before being downed. Three successive line bucks carried the oval over.

Captain Loug, While and Jacobs were the luminaries in the ball carrying department for the Tigers, while Jordan, Wilson and Taylor did some good work in the line, breaking through several times and smothering the fresh plays before they had time to function.

Biddies Drill For Tech Rats

COLUMBIA, S. C., Nov. 19.—South Carolina's freshmen eleven, heartened by its victory over the Furman freshmen last Friday, moves on Atlanta Saturday for a game with the Georgia Tech frosh.

The brilliant play of "Buck" Parrott, brother of the celebrated "Buck" Flowers, old Georgia Tech football star, in the Furman game, makes him the logical choice for starting the Tech game at the quarterback post unless Coach A. W. Norman elects otherwise. Parrott, whose real name is Flowers, but bears a new cognomen by virtue of being an adopted son of a South Carolina family, has not been used much this season except in the Furman game.

Bill Gilmore, Columbia high school star of last year, who has been playing in the backfield, Fleming, Carnes, Cain, Reynolds, Martin and Benton. In the line there will be Newman and Yonce.

Ewing and Aronson at guards; Freeman and Brantley or Gaskin and Falkenberg at tackles; Correll and Jones or Atwell and Moroso at ends.

The Carolina freshmen, held scoreless in their first two engagements of the current season, showed a fine offensive last Friday to wallop Furman, 12 to 7. Previously they had lost to Clemson, 3 to 0, and played a scoreless tie with the Presbyterian College "rats."

Sally League Meeting Today

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Nov. 19.—(AP)—Directors of the South Atlantic association and President W. G. Bramham will meet here tomorrow with formation of a new league agreement as the major business before them.

The agreement, under which the league has operated for the past five years, expired with the close of the past season and a new contract of some form interimly agreed to if the league is to continue.

Bramham tonight expressed confidence that the league would be kept intact and with the same club members if he had last season. He said he expected the meeting to develop considerable discussion of the league's rookierule and that perhaps it might be altered.

Another issue that may possibly come up is that of division of the league's surplus. Some of the club presidents are known to be opposed to any division of it, while clubs which have had hard financial string during the past few seasons favor splitting it up.

Dempsey To Stage Benefit Boxing Show

CHICAGO, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Jack Dempsey will promote a Christmas benefit boxing show for Chicago's needy at the Coliseum next Tuesday night. It will be an all-heavyweight card with Les Marriner, former University of Illinois boxer, meeting George Hoffman, of New York, in the ten-round windup.

Sixth District Faces Fine Court Season

BARNESVILLE, Ga., Nov. 19.—The Sixth District Aggies, with O. W. Bellamy as coach of basketball, have played two pre-season games and won both with overwhelming victories. The team has the best outlook for the G. I. A. A. championship that it has had in the history of the school. It has been stated. A large number of the last year varsity players are back and some fine recruits are in training. Coach Bellamy is delighted in the start that the boys have made. Basketball is the major sport at the school, and class elimination contests are played each year, and the best players from all classes are picked for the varsity. Reginald Sawyer is acting captain of the team.

GRID SYSTEM WIDELY USED

Irish Plan of Operation Calls for Fast Guards and Backs.

By Howard H. Jones,

Southern California Coach.
Variety in systems of offense has increased somewhat in the last 15 or 20 years. However, on close observation one will find a great many football teams using similar systems of attack.

For a number of years the most commonly used formation of attack was the unbalanced line and one wing back. In this formation coaches simply eliminated the position of the quarterback behind center and established the new position just outside the strong side end and a yard back.

Another formation attack being used more every year is the two wing back, applied to either the balanced or unbalanced line.

NEW METHOD.
In this system the back man on the old tandem formation has been eliminated. An old-fashioned coach from the line of scrimmage just outside the weak side end. The running attack from a formation of this type depends upon reverses and fake reverses, with the fullback handling the ball on every play. The system has been used successfully by Glenn Warner, now coaching Stanford.

It is a very simple system, used extensively throughout the country is the Notre Dame attack, which requires shifting the ends to wider positions and the shifting of all four backs to either side. The successful operation of this system depends upon fast and clever backs and speedy guards for interference.

It is only natural to assume that when a coach is using a certain system of attack he favors it. I have spent the last eight years of coaching by employing the shift attack. I started using it because it was a little wider on the line of scrimmage, and held the guards and ends back and shifted these men to the line of scrimmage before the ball was snapped. This shift was what one would term a quick jump shift, and differed from the old Minnesota shift in that it permitted a play required a full step and a jump.

MAIN REASON.
My main reason for using this type of system was that I believed the point of attack could be better concealed by causing a defensive team to shift, instead of permitting them to observe pointing backs or over-zealous players. Then, too, by shifting various players the eligible receivers for a forward pass could suddenly be changed. At present I am shifting every lineman except the center.

The first year I used the shift attack was at Iowa, in 1921, when Iowa won the Big Ten championship and defeated Notre Dame for the western championship.

The strongest argument against a shift attack is the loss of balance and consequently cannot put the full drive into their charge. Another argument opposed to the shift is that it cripples the generalship of the quarterback.

CONSTANT DRILLING.
My opinion is that the chief objection can be overcome by constant drilling of the men.
Attempting to refute the argument on generalship I will say that the most successful judgment today is based upon experiment and the choice of this or that play can only be determined by the measure of success it has attained on previous attempts.

It is very difficult to prove whether this or that system is the best. The winning of games is no distinct proof, because it is unlikely that the material throughout the two teams is equally balanced in strength.

About the only thing that can be said is that most of the systems employed in larger universities are good.

Crowd Expected For Clark Game

Advance ticket sale for the two days that they have been available for the South Carolina State and Clark University football game on Spiller's field Saturday afternoon has already reached over the thousand mark, it was stated at the business office of Clark University.

The sale leaped with the announcement that the Tech football squad would attend the game in a body as the honor guests of the day. Special features of all kinds have been arranged by the Atlanta institution to make the day a remembered one.

Mr. Spiller has announced that three-fourths of the grandstand will be set aside for white fans. The prices for these colored games are always at a low cost and should draw a good crowd, as they are hard fought and cleanly played.

Coach Taylor, Clark coach, got down to hard work Tuesday afternoon. Far after dark he was sending his charges through their regular pace. The Red and Black squad scrimmaged today against the South Carolina plays and formation. Every man on the squad will see plenty of hard work. Clark, playing against the J. C. Smith aggregation did not impress Coach Taylor, and several weak spots will have to be strengthened before the game with the South Carolina champions.

Saunders, who was considered second string center, before his excellent playing in last Saturday's encounter, will likely get the call over James in this week's battle. Ballou, who is making a strong bid for all-southern tackle, is nursing a charley horse and is not likely to get the starting assignment. Hainey, the big, husky guard, along with Fagan and Hughes, will be the power house in the Clark forward wall Saturday. In last Saturday's game the line charged as one and chained the powerful backfield of Johnson C. Smith behind the line of scrimmage.

For Clark to win this game, Cotton, Carolina's great threat, will have to be reckoned with. His running and passing in Saturday's game is expected to provide thrills for the thousands of fans who will witness this classic.

Gus Dorais, successful coach at Detroit, was a forward passing mate of Knute Rockne at Notre Dame and served one year as Rockne's assistant.

SPORTLIGHT Grantland Rice

Who are the ten best backs of the season up to date? A problem of this type can open more arguments from one coast to another than almost any detail of football's unending debates.

The selection would have to be made from the following—a partial list:

Cagle, of the Army.
Booth, of Yale.
Pomeroy, of Utah.
Marsters, of Dartmouth.
Nagurski, of Minnesota.
Damsa and Parkinson, of Pittsburgh.
Carrideo, and possibly one or two others, from Notre Dame.
Lom, of California.
Banker, of Tulane.
McEvers, of Tennessee.
Glasgow, of Iowa.
Welch, Yunevich and Harneson, of Purdue.
Wittmer, of Princeton.
Brazil, of Detroit University.

And the southwest has more than one entry who must be considered. The unfortunate injury to Marsters removed one of the greatest backs that football has ever known—and this is barring no one, from Heston on through Grange to the present day.

There are at least eighteen or twenty great backs in football now, and any final selection will have to depend largely upon the quality and quantity of work delivered through the harder schedules. The selection will also have to be made on the basis of all-round ability. An all-star back should be able to do more than one or two things brilliantly. And those who have shown this ability through a series of hard, battering games where they have taken a lot of punishment will have that much in their favor.

Punishing the Stars.

Few realize how much punishment an outstanding back takes in the course of a season. They are not only the main targets of every defensive thrust, but they are hit harder and treated with much greater roughness than ordinary average backs.

Cagle, of the Army, has taken an abnormal amount of punishment this fall. He has taken a battering that few could have stood. They have dived at his neck, shoulders and back, even after he was stopped along the ground.

There is more bad sportsmanship in football when it comes to the treatment of a star back receives than any other part of the game can show. Bob Zupke remarked lately that the same treatment was handed Red Grange from one Saturday to another. His body was black and blue all through the fall.

This is one advantage Knute Rockne has with at least six or seven unusually good backs, who can be relieved by first-class talent at any time. He could lose two fine backs and still swing a strong, fast backfield into action from Carrideo, Brill, Elder, Mullins, Schwartz and Savoldi. And there would still be a reserve class waiting when a replacement job was needed.

There is a big difference between hard play and the deliberate intention to drive a man from the game. Any football player guilty of the latter act is 100 per cent mucker, who should be driven from football.

The South Bend Stretch.

Few teams have plowed through a good schedule with such finishing games as Southern California, Northwestern and the Army.

There has been a general feeling that if Notre Dame could get by Southern California both Northwestern and the Army would be push-overs. They are about the huskiest looking push-overs you will see in a long time. Northwestern has been coming at a rapid pace, in spite of losing Bruda, a star back, early in the year. Hanley has a team on hand today that will give anybody an even battle.

The same is true of the Army. The Army hasn't had its share of luck this season, but it has a much better team than Biff Jones and his staff sent to the wars a year ago.

The Army has a fast, hard-charging line, two good ends and a good backfield surrounding a star. Mugel, O'Keefe, Bowman, Carver, Stuart and others are all football players.

The odds will be against Northwestern and the Army in these two final Notre Dame games, but they won't be heavy odds.

No team this season has attempted to hammer its way down the stretch against such three teams as Southern California, Northwestern and the Army.

FEW GRIDIRON GAMES SLATED FOR SATURDAY

California-Stanford and Yale-Harvard Clashes To Feature Card.

By George Kirksey,

United News Staff Correspondent.
NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—(United News).—There is a big gap in the nation's football schedule this week preparatory to the Thanksgiving Day games and the general windup of the season a week from Saturday.

On opposite sides of the continent, however, two of the year's most important games will be staged Saturday. Out on the Pacific coast California plays Stanford at Palo Alto and the far western championship will hang in the balance. California can clinch the title by winning, while a victory for Stanford will bring about a three-way tie between California, Stanford and Southern California.

In the east, Yale and Harvard meet at Cambridge in their traditional game, with more than the mere winning of a football game at stake, to say nothing of the thousands of dollars wagered on the result by the adherents, students and alumni of two of the east's oldest institutions.

IDLE PITT.
Pittsburgh, the east's outstanding eleven, is idle this week awaiting its final game of the season against Penn State Thanksgiving day.

Of the east's other games the Bucknell-Fordham clash at New York and the intercollegiate game between Army and Ohio Wesleyan are of any importance.

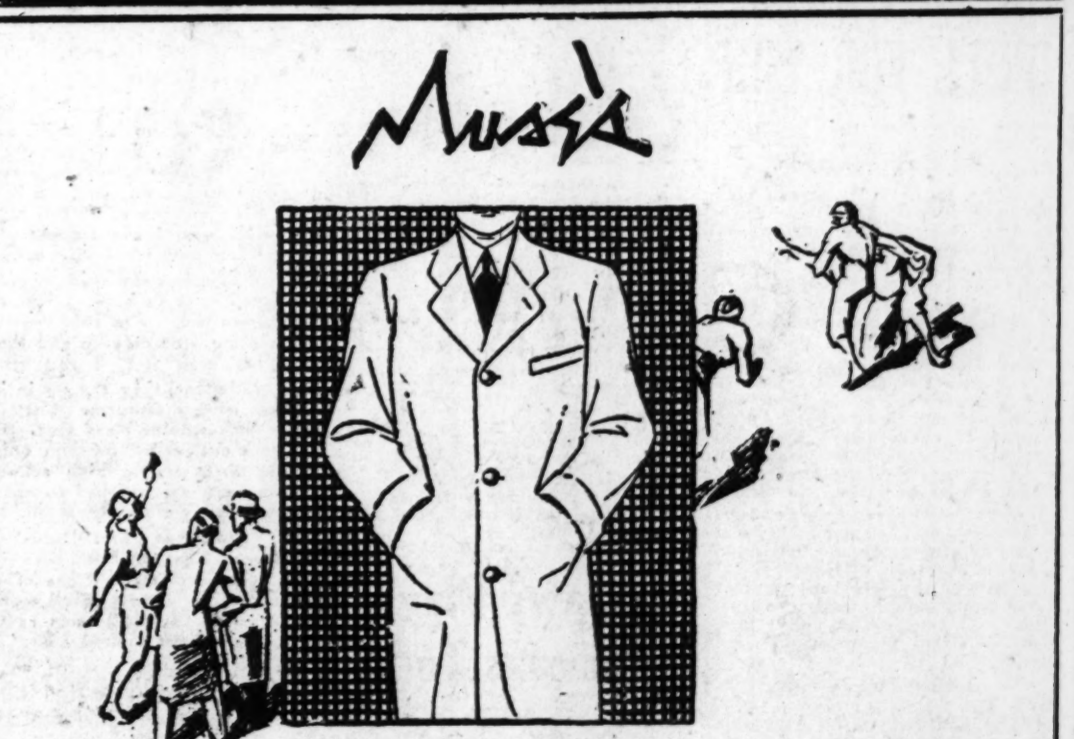

Two championships already have been determined. Purdue, having clinched the Big Ten title and the University of Utah, holding the Rocky Mountain title for the second consecutive year. Purdue plays Indiana at Bloomington Saturday, but even the loss of this game will not take the Big Ten title from the Boilermakers, who have won four conference games and lost none. Utah is idle until Thanksgiving Day, closing the season then against the Utah Aggies.

In the middle west Notre Dame will risk its undefeated record and claim to the national title against Northwestern, beaten last week by Indiana, but nevertheless dangerous.

TITLE TRY.
Nebraska will attempt to clinch the Big Six championship by defeating the Kansas Aggies at Manhattan. Nebraska has been tied by Missouri and Oklahoma, but has not lost a conference game. The Kansas Aggies have won three conference games and lost one.

Practically all the southern teams are idle this week, waiting for their traditional Thanksgiving Day games. Tennessee and Tulane, unbeaten southern leaders, will meet foes which held them to scoreless ties last season, Tennessee playing Kentucky at Lexington and Tulane facing Louisiana State at Baton Rouge.

Texas Christian, leader in the southwest as a result of a victory over the hitherto unbeaten Texas eleven last week, will play Baylor at Waco. Southern Methodist, tied twice in the conference, but unbeaten, has an easy conference game against Rice.

Coach Mehre To Give Bulldogs Taste of Alabama Plays Today

RATS TO FACE VARSITY SQUAD IN SCRIMMAGE

Georgians Given Light Workout as Work for Tide Starts in Earnest

By K. Anderson.

ATHENS, Ga., Nov. 19.—With four days of rest and light work behind them, the University of Georgia football players will start scrimmaging tomorrow against Alabama plays on Sanford field.

The freshmen team with a backfield combination of Buster Mott, Keys, Brown and Eberhardt have been practicing Alabama plays for several days and have become very proficient in the Crimson Tide's style of football. They will carry the ball against the varsity tomorrow behind a powerful freshman line which in weight, at least, bears some resemblance to the celebrated line of Coach Wallace Wade.

NO JINX THIS YEAR.

The Alabama jinx which has been present on many a Thanksgiving Day in Birmingham means nothing to the Georgia team this year. In fact, the sophomores, who constitute more than half of the Bulldog machine, have never heard of such a thing as a jinx, and the only knowledge these sophomores have of Alabama is that they gave the freshmen from Tuscaloosa a decisive licking in Athens last year.

The day's work was light. The Bulldogs took the field and went through a light limbering up exercise before Coach Mehre started the players to going down under punts, Vernon Smith, Armin Waugh and Chandler have been doing the punting during practice. Smith continues to look good as a punter, while both Waugh and Chandler are improving as the season goes on. Most of the afternoon was devoted to signal drill, which was conducted enthusiastically.

Wade Prepares

For Two Big Shots.

UNIVERSITY, Ala., Nov. 19.—Coach Wallace Wade took down his old double-barreled shotgun and tinkered with it a good while Tuesday afternoon. The famous Crimson Tide mentor is getting ready to let go both barrels against the University of Georgia within a fortnight, in a grand finale to the 1929 gridiron hunt.

The Alabama sharpshooting master will take a practice shot Saturday at the 1929 litter of Georgia Bulldogs.

RECORD CROWD WILL SEE VOLS PLAY KENTUCKY

Advance Sale Promises Around 20,000 for Battle Thanksgiving Day.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Nov. 19.—(AP)—A crowd of 20,000 people—the largest that ever saw two teams engage in a football game in the Blue Grass state capital—will more than likely be on hand when the University of Kentucky Wildcats, victorious in six out of seven games this year, and the University of Tennessee, sporting a clean slate for the season, clash here Thanksgiving Day.

This much became known today when S. A. "Daddy" Boles, athletic director of the university, announced that he had already sold 13,000 seats for the game and that 5,000 had been put on sale and were going like hot cakes.

The University of Tennessee today shipped to Lexington 3,000 steel bleacher seats which will be erected at one end of the field and on the other field 3,000 more bleacher seats will be set up. These seats include 1,800 which the University of Kentucky owns and the seats that have been loaned to University of Kentucky by Blue Grass colleges and high schools.

When these are sold standing room will go on sale.

Coach Harry Gamage sent his Wildcats through a tough offensive scrimmage this afternoon, with Kelly, Covington, Jack Phipps and Spicer carrying the brunt of attack. Kelly and Covington were going especially well on end runs, but breaking away several times for touchdowns on one of the best freshman teams Kentucky has had for many years.

Gamage is teaching his men several new pass formations for the Tennessee tilt and it looks as though he will mix this type of an offense with the famed running attack which only one team—Alabama—has been able to stop this year, and this because Kelly was not available for service and Covington was suffering from an injury which made it impossible for him to do the side stepping and twisting necessary for the proper execution of the plays.

Conference Boasts Numerous Stars

With the curtain about to fall on the current gridiron season, football experts are beginning to meditate on their selections for the 1929 all-southern honor team.

Conference celebrities have only a couple of games in which to add to their laurels before the plums of the year are handed out.

Sport writers and coaches will have their hands full attempting to pick a backfield quartet from the score or more of really outstanding ball carriers on the rosters of the twenty-three circle members.

Perhaps the greatest difficulty will come in the naming of the two half-back choices. In addition to several of last year's stars who have blossomed forth anew this season there are a half dozen sensational sophomores who will have to be considered.

HOLD-OVERS.

Both halfback members of the 1928 all-star team—Billy Banker of Tulane and Warner Mizell of Georgia Tech—Participated this season. Banker has been runner riot and is considered by many as a sure bet for one of the halfback posts again this year. Sharing honors with the Tulane flash are McEyer, Tennessee's southern scoring leader; Spear of Virginia Poly; Magner of North Carolina; Suther and Campbell of Alabama; Thomson of Georgia Tech; McMillan of Clemson and Boineau of South Carolina.

Clyde Crabtree, Florida's all-southern quarterback last year, will be a contender for the post on the 1929 eleven. Bobby Dodd of Tennessee; Earl Dunlap of Georgia Tech; Baumbach of Tulane and Downum of Georgia also have shone brilliantly as field generals.

Heading the list among the fullback candidates are Tony Holm of Alabama and Caine Cawthon of Florida. Both have been vital cogs in their team's play. Benny Rothstein of Georgia; McCarley of Clemson; Sewers of Tulane and Spaulding of North Carolina are other great line plungers as well as valuable men on the defense.

SOPHOMORES.

Included among the outstanding sophomores are "Shipwreck" Kelly and the Phipps Brothers of Kentucky; Johnny Branch and Sussner of North Carolina; Hugh Miller of Alabama; Amos Leonard of Vanderbilt; Bowman and Butler of Louisiana State; Bill Thomas of Virginia; Rhame and Culp of South Carolina; Monk Dorsett of Florida; Bob Worrall of Sewanee and Thompson of the Mississippi Argosies.

Other backs who have received popular acclaim are Parker of Vanderbilt; Goodbread and Bethen of Florida; Spicer of Kentucky; Roberts and Waugh of Georgia; Justus of Clemson; Hicks of Alabama; Dunn and Hawkins of Virginia Military Institute; Smith and Reeves of Louisiana State; Hackman of Tennessee; Ike Armstrong of Tulane; Crawford of Auburn, and Buie and Godfrey of Duke.

Russell Trims Douglasville

Russell High school easily defeated Douglasville high school, 65 to 0, Tuesday afternoon on the East Point gridiron. It was a return game, the first resulting in a 7-to-0 victory for Russell in Douglasville several weeks ago.

The game was featured by numerous long runs by the East Point backs, who were given perfect interference. The runs were equally divided with Gordon, Dunn, Bond-Clay, and Diggs, a substitute back, each scoring one touchdown. Collins also scored one of the touchdowns on a long pass.

Aderholdt, Bell and Fisher played good in the Russell line, while Cobb and Thompson played best for the losers.

Daddy's Player.

Buck Yost, last year a freshman football player at North Carolina, now is safely enrolled in his daddy's school and playing with the freshmen at Michigan.

Three-Eye Loop Slices Salaries

DECATUR, Ill., Nov. 19.—(AP)—To cut expenses and to aid two clubs, Bloomington and Quincy, in their efforts to remain in the loop, the Three-Eye baseball league has unanimously voted to reduce the player salary limit from $4,500 to $3,650. Despite having had pennant-contending clubs last season, Quincy and Bloomington lost so much money that it is still doubtful whether they will retain their league franchises.

Another move to strengthen the circuit financially was made at yesterday's annual business meeting by scheduling doubleheaders every Sunday throughout the season, which will open Sunday, April 27, and end on Labor Day—a program of 140 games in 120 days.

CAMELS—

The phrase "I've Graduated to Camels" originated with a Camel smoker. It expresses the experience of millions who through Camels have learned to know real smoking pleasure.

As taste in smoking develops, it naturally leads toward better quality. New smokers may not be critical but when they once experience the true mildness and surpassing fragrance of the Camel blend, they realize that here is a real superiority. It is for smokers of such discernment that Camels are made . . . for them the choicest tobaccos are selected . . . and this quality is maintained for the millions who know genuine smoking pleasure.

Northwestern Eleven Is Groomed To Stop Notre Dame Irish

Hanley and Rockne Work Squads Hard

Mighty Struggle Expected When Two Powerful Teams Clash on Saturday.

CHICAGO, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Only a victory over Notre Dame Saturday can make Northwestern forget last week's defeat by Indiana, and the assignment of stopping Knute Rockne's Ramblers, big as it is, does not look too big to members of the Wildcat squad.

California Gans Wins Over Dunn

California Joe Gans was given a well earned 10-round decision Tuesday night over Dynamite Roy Dunn in the main attraction of 52 rounds of boxing at the city auditorium. There was little to choose between the fighters in the first two rounds, but from the third on there was plenty of action, on both sides. Gans carried the fight all the way and used a deadly left jab with effectiveness. He landed plenty of blows and they were not easy punches.

Gans went down for several counts in the fourth round but came back strong and was never in danger of losing the fight. In the semi-final, Cowboy Kid earned a draw with Rough House Glover in eight rounds. Kid Moon, of Atlanta, won a technical knockout in the third round over Straight Eight Dunn, of Macon, in a ground decision.

West Virginia Schools Break

BUCKHANNON, W. Va., Nov. 19.—West Virginia Wesleyan College athletic authorities today announced that all athletic relations had been discontinued with Davis and Elkins college because of the Elkins institution's failure to abide by the eligibility rules of the local schools. Both schools are members of the West Virginia Collegiate Athletic conference which permits players to participate in four years of varsity athletics. Wesleyan's protest is based on the playing of former Haskell institute athletes on the D. & E. squad. The local school's contention being these men—Smith, Hawley and Gurnea—had already engaged in several years of varsity competition before coming to the Elkins college. According to Director Randolph—that Haskell is only a high school, and that while Haskell men might have played against college eleven, they did not compete as college players.

Success as Pilot of Cardinals Predicted for Gabby—He Can Handle Players.

By Jack Sords,

Central Press Sports Cartoonist-Writer.

A thorough knowledge of the strategy of the game and the ability to handle and develop ball players are the essentials that will make Gabby Street a successful manager at St. Louis next year. He is capable of whipping into shape young players looking for their chance in the big time, and with the extensive farm system of the Cardinals, Street is going to have the opportunity of looking over plenty of youngsters.

Wolfpack-Aggie Game Cancelled

RALEIGH, N. C., Nov. 19.—(AP)—North Carolina State college's athletic authorities announced this afternoon that on the request of Mississippi A. & M. athletic officials the game scheduled between the two institutions at Starkville, Miss., December 7, had been cancelled.

The cancellation of this year's game will merely mean the moving of the contract between the schools up to start next fall, with the date for the game set for October 25 and the place undecided, though if this year's contest had been played it would have been staged in Raleigh.

Cancellation of the game will make the State season end with the game with the University of South Carolina here Saturday after Thanksgiving.

Two Fox Hounds Tied for Lead

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 19.—(AP)—The second day of the Chase futurity, opening event of the week of annual field trials of the National Fox Hunting Association, saw all but 36 puppies eliminated and two hounds tied for the lead as the judges scored the dogs closely in their last today over the rugged Harpeth Hills hunt.

Going into a tie for the lead were Sheriff Joe Lindsay, by Champion Herrin out of Ellen, owned by John Branham, of Gallatin, Tenn., and Rebecca Sibert, a black, white and tan puppy by Cap Sibert out of Little Rebecca, owned by General William Sibert, of Bowling Green, Ky. Each was credited with 90 points for the two days. The final cast of the Chase futurity will be made tomorrow, when the winner will be selected by the judges.

The first upset of the trials was the elimination today of Sister Tuck, lemon and white puppy which led the first day with a score of 70. This daughter of Tuck Stride and Sister Ella, owned by L. S. Sifton, of Richmond, Va., was scratched for loafing. Twenty-three other hounds were eliminated for various infractions of hunting rules.

Most of the eliminations, officials said, have been due to babbling, rabbling and loafing. So far the hounds have been scored on hunting, speed, driving and trailing.

The main event of the program, the all-age race, open to the world, for the national championship, will begin Thursday, with the finals on Saturday. More than 100 hounds are entered.

McMillin Meets Dan Bible Again

MANHATTAN, Kan., Nov. 19.—(AP)—The only time "Bo" McMillin's football team ever met Dan Bible's team, Bible's team won. Whether Bible can repeat in the second meeting will be determined here Saturday when the McMillin-coached Kansas Aggies battle the Bible-tutored Nebraska Cornhuskers in a game which may decide the Big Six football race. It was the year McMillin, then a quarterback, led the little Centre college team to victory over Harvard that Bible beat McMillin. Centre was returning from the Pacific coast and stopped off in College Station, Texas, to play the Texas Aggies, coached by Bible. The Aggies won, 22 to 14.

Before McMillin's native north at Fort Worth and later at Centre, Bible was a student at Centre. Bible and McMillin are not intimate personal friends, but each has expressed himself as having a high regard for the other as a man and as a coach.

Dobbs Will Decide Policy With Majors

Meeting With Wilbert Robinson Scheduled This Week—Officials Meet Thursday.

By Ralph McGill.

Atlanta's new baseball line-up will go into its first official huddle here on Thursday when Manager Johnny Dobbs, President Chip Robert and Vice President R. J. Spiller convene to formulate plans for the 1936 season.

"Manager Dobbs and Mr. Spiller have already been busy," said Chip Robert yesterday afternoon. "Mr. Spiller remained out of town yesterday following the Memphis meeting engaged on some business for the club. Johnny Dobbs will arrive in Atlanta Thursday and we will have an official meeting before the dinner that is to be given that evening for Dobbs."

"We are determined to show Dobbs and the fans that we are behind him to a man in the effort to give Atlanta a winning baseball club. He will meet the officials of the club, the 11 new owners and directors Thursday night."

"There is really no news we can announce at this time. What we are interested in is getting Dobbs started and then let him handle the baseball end of it."

TO DOVER HALL. Following that meeting Dobbs and Rell J. Spiller will go to Dover Hall hunting lodge near Brunswick, according to word from the Cracker office. They will meet there with Wilbert Robinson, manager of the Brooklyn club, and the meeting may have something to do with Atlanta's major league connections next fall. They will remain at the lodge for several days of hunting.

No announcement has been made by Atlanta officials as to what they plan to do about their major league connections next season. Dobbs constructed a team at Birmingham last season which included only one man who belonged to a major league club and he was of no great help in winning the pennant. The agreement with Brooklyn may be abandoned. There has been no indication as to the plans Dobbs has.

NOT SATISFACTORY. Last year the connection with the Brooklyn Club was found to be only fairly satisfactory. Wilbert Robinson was handicapped and unable to make any helpful moves because of his position at Brooklyn. The Brooklyn owners are split in two factions, one desiring to get rid of Robinson and hire a new manager and the other faction determined to retain the services of the genial and round Robin.

The war is still at Flushing and the Squire has retired to his hunting lodge for rest while the factions war. The trip to Dover will find the portly Mr. Rell J. Spiller out in the cold, gray dawn waiting at one of the deer runs. The vice president of the Crackers yearns for a new deer head to hang in his office.

No baseball office is completely furnished unless there is a deer head on the wall. All of them have at least one. There is one in the Atlanta baseball office but it is thin and wasting away. There is a sad and lugubrious air about it and its eyes are forlorn and melancholy. The theory is that the deer has been hanging there for so long and seeing the sad faces of the Cracker officials as they came in from watching a second division club that it is suffering from an acute case of melancholia, an incurable disease.

Last spring, when Your Uncle Robbie broke his hapless Dodgers through Atlanta for two exhibition games, he sat in the Cracker office and stared long at the sad-eyed deer, Robbie clinked his glass of ginger ale and cleared his throat.

ROBBIE'S PLEA. "R. J.," he said, "why in the world don't you get rid of that poor, skinned deer's head? I half believe it is a goat. Maybe you aren't giving it enough to eat. Please get rid of it before I come back again as it makes me, and to look at the poor thing."

Other baseball men came and went and they all broke down and wept at the sight of the fading deer's head on the wall.

SEEKS NEW ONE. The Cracker vice president heard so many anathemas cast on the head of his deer that he has sworn to get another. He will go to Dover disguised as a small hill. In fact, he and four Uncle Robbie have planned to get together and go disguised as two small hills and have the deer run between them. Fear that one hill might shoot the other hill led to an abandonment of this plan.

At any rate, part of the new reorganization plan at the Cracker park includes a new deer's head for the office. It is peculiar that the baseball furnishing goods houses do not carry them in stock along with spikes and gloves. They are vital and necessary to any well-mannered office. And so the Crackers will have a virile, sturdy, eager-eyed deer's head for the office.

New Track Opens On Thanksgiving

Rain and inability to complete necessary work on the new half mile speedway on Pace's Ferry road, has caused postponement of the opening races until Thanksgiving Day, it was announced Tuesday by George Hamilton, veteran automobile race promoter. It was originally planned to open the track with seven events Saturday.

Trial heats and qualifying events will start at 9 o'clock Thursday morning with the opening race slated for 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon, with the seven events on the card.

Work on the track will be speeded up as much as possible during the next few days and everything is expected to be in readiness by the early part of next week. The surfacing material has arrived and will be spread over the track early next week, to eliminate the dust.

More than a dozen of the fastest racing cars in America have been shipped to Atlanta and after a tuning up they will be placed in several of the downtown windows. Several of the machines are being repaired for the opening races.

Henry Turgeon, of Providence, R. I., is the first driver to send in his entry blank. Turgeon has been racing 12 years and will drive his famous "Mystery Car," which is capable of maintaining a speed of 114 miles an hour. The car arrived in Atlanta last week.

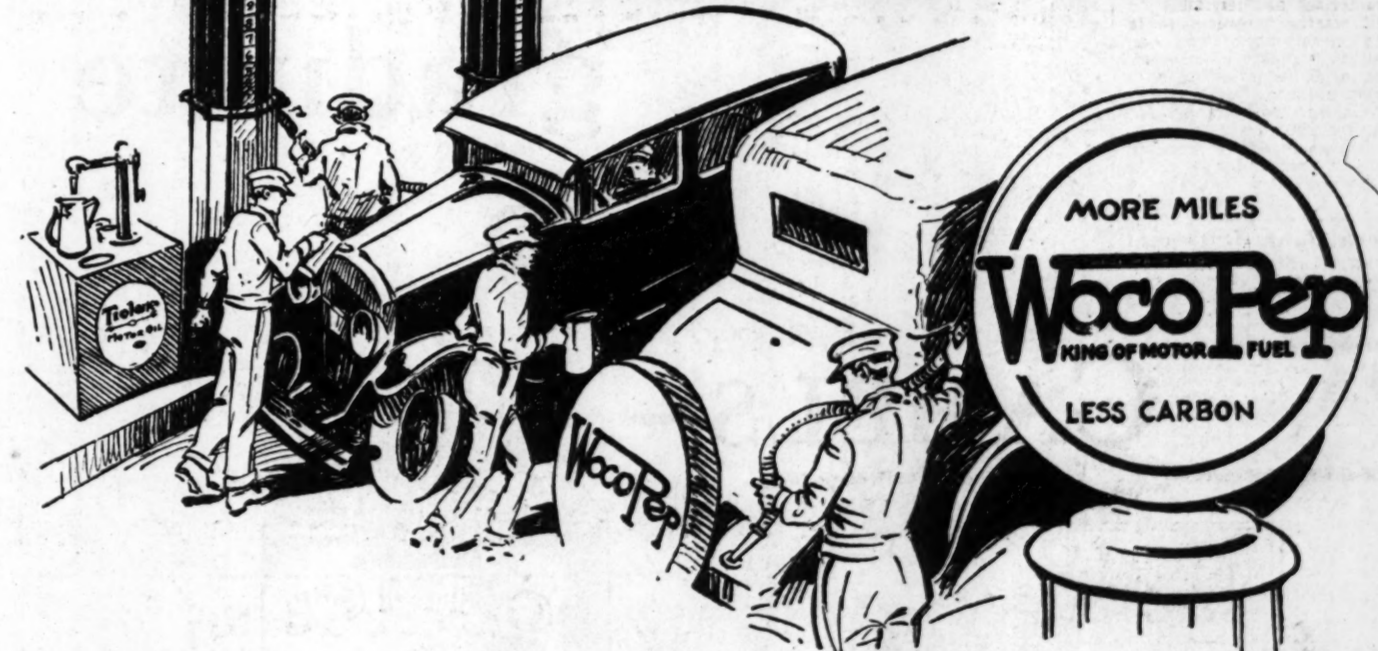

Charles Stry, a Frenchman who finished in the 500-mile Indianapolis speedway race last summer, is another of the early entries. He will drive a Miller special, which was rebuilt after being wrecked last May. It was the car which killed Jones two days before the 1929 Indianapolis race and was rebuilt in time to participate in the event.

Y. M. C. A. Baseball Loop Plays Tonight

Another round of the Y. M. C. A. House Basketball league at the Y. M. C. A. will be played tonight on the "C" court. The league is composed of teams whose players are members of the Y. M. C. A. and who are unable to enter any of the other amateur leagues. In the last week's game, the "Crack Shots" nosed out the "Fast Five," 10 to 15, in the last minute of play. The winners were leading by one point at the end of the half.

Wave and Vols Get Game Bids

SALT LAKE CITY, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Inquiries were on their way today to four universities in an effort to match one of their teams with the University of Utah, Rocky Mountain conference champions, on December 14, at Salt Lake City. The movement is backed by the Salt Lake Chamber of Commerce. Invitations for the post-season contest have been sent to Tulane University, Tennessee University, Texas Christian University and St. Mary's, of Berkeley, Cal. The date set for the proposed game is only tentative.

Public Utilities Lead Way

In Steady Upward Trend

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—(AP)—

Heavy buying of the public utility stocks featured a brisk rally in today's curb market. Some heaviness developed at the opening, but steady offerings of the leaders were easily absorbed, and the market moved steadily upward to the close. Final quotations generally were around the day's high levels, although a sprinkling of issues closed with net declines.

Easier credit conditions, the beginning of President Hoover's conference to stimulate business and the absence of a frightened liquidation as a result of recent brokerage failures.

Electric Bond and Share advanced from an opening price of 93.75 to 93.12, a net gain of 9.38 points. American Gas and Electric jumped 11.12 points to 11.25 points on a small turnover. Allied Power and Light and American Foreign Power.

GIRL, KIDNAPED, FIGHTS FIERCELY, AND IS SET FREE

CHICAGO, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Miss Margaret Carlin, a stenographer, was kidnapped last night by a man in a chauffeured motorcar, but she fought so fiercely that her abductor finally threw her from the machine.

Her kidnaper, she said, was a middle-aged man wearing goggles. He demanded to know the address of John Bull, her fiancé. He said he wanted to kill him.

The young woman was picked up hysterical from the street and taken to a hospital. She said she did not know the man who kidnapped her, but that he protested his love for her and swore death to her fiancé.

Fertilizer Men Plan Protection Of Trade Rights

The general session Tuesday of the fourth annual Atlanta convention of the National Fertilizer Association, which was held at the Biltmore hotel, was featured by adoption of a plan to police the industry against violations of the code of trade practices.

Two resolutions were passed by the association, one expressing sorrow over the death of Secretary James W. Good, the other commending President Hoover for his business clinic, and assuring him of cooperation in the outlook for stability in the farm market.

The creation of a "Plant Food Institute" with an annual budget of approximately a million dollars was suggested by J. W. Bowell, president of the association.

Judge C. C. Wilson, of Richmond, Va., initiated the campaign against the violators of trade-rules of the organization by presenting a resolution recommending the reporting of infringements of regulations that have been approved by the federal trade commission.

He was followed by Judge Martin A. Morrison, attorney of the federal trade commission, who spoke briefly on the subject.

Charles J. Brand, executive secretary and treasurer of the association, predicted trade-practice turmoil unless American industries joined in the plan for enforcing a more general observance of their self-imposed rules of business conduct.

A proposal by Mr. Brand that trade disputes be adjudicated in the areas in which they originated was approved. Should this attempt fail, the complaint is to be considered by a disinterested committee of the association.

Failing to obtain a conclusion at this state, the question of further enforcement is to go to the board of directors for decision as to whether the case be submitted to the federal trade commission or other federal agency.

A dinner at 7:30 o'clock concluded the day's program. Principal speakers were Charles J. Brand, Andrew M. Soule, and E. St. Elmo Lewis. Mr. Brand spoke on the reduction of the cost of fertilizers, and the probability of Muscle Shoals as a source of nitrogen. Dr. Soule, of the Georgia State College of Agriculture, spoke on the encouragement of the fertilizer industry in giving dairymen in the south. Mr. Lewis emphasized the importance of advertising in educating the dealer.
